IT'S ONLY A PAUSE: MODI

SAYS OPERATION SINDOOR NEW NORM; FUTURE TALKS ONLY ON TERROR, RETURNING PoK; NUCLEAR BLACKMAIL WON'T WORK

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR
@ New Delhi

IN a televised address to the nation on Monday, Prime Minister Narendra Modi delivered a clear and uncompromising message to Pakistan: the halt in India's military operations is a pause, not an end—and going forward, any engagement with Islamabad will be limited to Pakistan-occupied Kashmir (PoK) and terrorism.

"Operation Sindoor has not ended; it will be a continuing and decisive action against state-sponsored terror attacks on Indian citizens," Modi asserted in his first remarks since the military strikes on terror infrastructure in Pakistan and PoK.

OPERATION SINDOOR
DAY 6

This is not the era of war, but it is not the era of terrorism either

Narendra Modi, Prime Minister

Modi made clear that the decision to pause retaliatory operations followed Pakistan's assurances to cease further terrorist and military activity. "In the coming days, we will measure every step taken by Pakistan on the basis of the attitude it adopts on terrorism," he warned.

Framing the operation as far more than a military offensive, the PM described it as a doctrinal shift in India's national security posture. "Operation Sindoor was not just an operation but a doctrinal change and a policy against terror," he said.

He dismissed Pakistan's long-used tactic of nuclear posturing, asserting that "nuclear blackmail" will not work against India, and stressed that New Delhi is no longer restrained by outdated strategic hesitations. Modi went on to reinforce the new paradigm: "This is a new normal. India will strike at the heart of terror decisively if our citizens are attacked."

"Terror and talk cannot go together; terror and trade cannot go together. And water and blood also cannot flow together," Modi said.

"The terrorist who dared to wipe the sindoor from the foreheads of our sisters — that's why India destroyed the very headquarters of terror in Pakistan," he added.

He detailed the impact of India's military strikes on terror infrastructure to respond to the Pahalgam, saying that the strikes sent shockwaves through Pakistan's leadership.

While condemning Pakistan's retaliation—targeting religious sites, schools, and military and civilian installations—Modi said India struck "strategically," hitting the core of Pakistan's terror infrastructure. Issuing a stark warning to Islamabad, Modi said: "The way Pakistan army and Pakistan government are encouraging terrorism, it will one day destroy Pakistan itself. If Pakistan wants to survive, it will have to destroy its terror infrastructure."

Did business-ceasefire tradeoff to avert nuclear conflict: Trump

JAYANTH JACOB @ New Delhi

US President Donald Trump on Monday claimed that his administration averted a potential nuclear conflict between India and Pakistan by brokering a "full and immediate ceasefire" and offering increased trade as an incentive for de-escalation between the neigbours.

"On Saturday, my administration helped broker a full and immediate ceasefire, I think, a permanent one, between India and Pakistan, ending a dangerous conflict of two nations with lots of nuclear weapons. And they were going at it hot and heavy, and it was seemingly not going to stop," Trump said in remarks from the White House, calling the halting of military action between two countries was one of the "historic events that took place over the last few days."

Trump claimed that US economic leverage played a key role in persuading the two sides to step back from the brink. "We helped a lot, and we helped also with trade. I said, 'Come on, we're going to do a lot of trade with you guys. Let's stop it. If you stop it, we're doing trade. If you don't stop it, we're not going to do any trade.'"

Trump went on to brag, "People have never really used trade the way I used it, that I can tell you, and all of a sudden they said, 'I think we're going to stop,' and they have." He said: "I think it could have been a bad nuclear war. Millions of people could have been killed. So I'm very proud of that.."

Indian sources, however, maintained that the de-escalation agreement was a bilateral initiative between the Directors General of Military Operations (DGMOs) of India and Pakistan sans third-party involvement.

No reference to trade issues, says India

Sources in Delhi denied that the US broached trade issues after Operation Sindoor. "There was no reference to trade in those discussions."

DGMOs smoke peace pipe in first talks after 'truce'

MAYANK SINGH @ New Delhi

THE Directors General of Military Operations (DGMOs) of Pakistan and India on Monday agreed not to initiate aggressive and inimical actions. According an Indian Army readout, in the talks between Lieutenant General Rajiv Ghai and Major General Kashif Chaudhry held at 5 pm, "Issues related to continuing the commitment that both sides must not fire a single shot or initiate any aggressive and inimical action against each other were discussed."

During the talks over the hotline, the two military officials also agreed that both sides consider immediate measures to ensure troop reduction from the borders and forward areas, the Army statement added.

The talks were initially scheduled for 12 noon on Monday but were deferred to the evening, though the reason for the delay was not conveyed by the Indian armed forces.

It was on Saturday that both sides had announced an agreement to cease all firings and military actions on land, air, and sea, effective immediately. Hours later, Pakistan breached the pact. The talks followed the relentless military operations carried out between the armed forces of the two countries.

Indian armed forces launched 'Operation Sindoor' on May 7 to destroy nine terror camps located in Pakistan and Pakistan-occupied Kashmir in response to the April 22 Pahalgam terror attack. P6,7,9,10

Robber flashes gun, escapes with cash from pub in B'luru

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE police rushed in with the Quick Response Team (QRT), drones and bomb squad to the upscale Geometry Brewery and Kitchen pub in Subramanyanagar 2nd Stage after the security guard made an emergency call, saying a robber, wielding a gun, had targeted the pub.

The guard made the call around 4.30 am on Monday, but the police, despite extensive search, could not arrest the masked intruder.

The police said Rs 50,000 is missing from the cash box on the third floor.

As the guard claimed that he locked the door with the robber inside, the police cordoned off the area and surrounded the three-storeyed pub along with QRT. The officials used drones to see if the robber was still inside, but did not find anyone despite intense checks.

The police suspect that the accused might have escaped through the backdoor by the time they reached the spot. They are trying to find out if he escaped through the kitchen or any other exit.

They suspect that the robber entered the pub by breaking open one of the rear doors. After disabling CCTV cameras, he went to the third floor and made away with the cash, said the police, who suspect the role of an insider. P3

Gaffe over J&K map puts Congress on backfoot

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

WITH the nation still in an unforgiving mood over terror attacks from across the border, the state unit of the principal opposition party, Congress, got itself in a tangle over representation of Jammu and Kashmir boundary in a map used by the party's social media team.

On Monday, the Karnataka Pradesh Congress Committee (KPCC) put out a post on social media criticizing the International Monetary Fund (IMF) approving financial aid to Pakistan but showed a part of Jammu and Kashmir as that of Pakistan.

The gaffe put the party on the back foot with India-Pakistan relationship at an all-time low. Enraged netizens poured vitriol on the party's social media page, forcing the party to delete the post.

The post was intended to criticise PM Narendra Modi and the Centre for failing to stop the IMF loan to Pakistan.

Opposition Leader in the Assembly, R Ashoka, called the Congress IT cell a terrorist sleeper cell of Pakistan. Expressing displeasure over the post, Ashoka said, "This shows how much they love Pakistan".

He also recalled how Chief Minister Siddaramaiah had initially reacted over the war against Pakistan. P4

WALKS INTO SUNSET

Kohli leaves behind a Virat void

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Chennai

AND so, just like that, the king bids adieu. For over a decade, Virat Kohli was synonymous with Test cricket because of the way he lived, breathed and cared for it. He put his heart and soul into the game's oldest format and it became richer because of it at a time when there were questions aplenty about the primacy of the five-day game.

So, it was no coincidence that Kohli engineered India's rise up the rankings thanks to the way he believed in approaching — 20 wickets first, batters next — Tests. If Kohli the white-ball captain had an asterisk next to it, Kohli's red-ball leadership was embellished every time he walked out for the toss.

There was the time when he instructed his bowlers to give England 'hell' at Lord's in 2021 (India won that game). There was the time when he whipped up the crowd, his bowlers and the fielders in a rabble-rousing display of us v. them in an electric Test against Australia at Bengaluru in 2017 (India won). There were memorable 100s in winning causes, losing causes as well as leading a team to a first series win in Australia.

Above all, there was an indescribable light around the 36-year-old whenever he strode out to the centre with his whites. It's no exaggeration to say that that light has now left the building and India will struggle to replace him for multiple reasons. One is Kohli the batter. The next is to find somebody who can transmit that same energy. When he announced his retirement on Insta, the accompanying choice was Frank Sinatra's 'My Way'. "I have lived it My Way, I travelled each and every highway, And more, much more than this, I did it my way". P15

HOW GREAT IS GREATER?

CLEAN, NEW BENGALURU IS DCM'S VISION

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

GREATER Bengaluru will come into existence in a few days, and promises to be a city with a new, clean look. Through the Swachhta Abhiyan, garbage will be disposed of and a clean Bengaluru will be built, Deputy Chief Minister and Bengaluru Development Minister DK Shivakumar declared on Monday, at the foundation laying ceremony of a 4MLD capacity ground-level reservoir in Pulakeshi Nagar assembly constituency.

"Bengaluru is being given a new look through Greater Bengaluru. It will be launched in two or three days, and immediately after that, a cleanliness campaign will be started. The public can call the corporation helpline to report garbage lying on roads, and it will be cleaned up. A clean Bengaluru will be created," he said.

The DCM, who was on city rounds covering areas of Mosque Road, Fraser Town and other areas in Pulakeshi Nagar assembly segment, said Bangalore Water Supply and Sewerage Board's reservoir in the constituency will help about 30,000 houses and 3.50 lakh people.

"In this area, Rs 130crore will be spent on roads, Rs 43crore on flyovers, Rs 320crore on ward development, and Rs 650crore on a new flyover. Your property records will be digitized and sent to your doorstep free of cost. This will be done in a big way soon," Shivakumar announced. He stated that local MLA AC Srinivas was pressuring the government to build a school and hospital in this constituency.

"Wherever the MLA finds land or if there is old school land, I am committed to building a new school. The corporation is also looking for land to construct a hospital," he said.

White-topping should last over 30 years: DKS

Bengaluru: Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar stressed that the white-topping of roads being undertaken by the BBMP should be so good that they should last for at least 30 years. "This is why frequent inspections (of roads) are being done," he said after inspecting road works in various parts of the city on Monday. "We do not inspect what officials show us. We inspect where I tell you to." Asked about his statement that Bengaluru's garbage disposal has become a mafia, he said, "The court has dismissed the stay order on garbage disposal tenders. The court has allowed the tender to be called within four months. We will do this and take up the garbage disposal work. We have documents showing some people have submitted tenders sitting in one house. But we will provide clean governance and build a clean Bengaluru." Asked about the flood situation during the rainy season, he said, "Precautionary measures have been taken to manage the situation during the rainy season. The officials and I are alert." ENS

KEA launches digital tools to help students

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE Karnataka Examinations Authority (KEA) on Monday launched three candidate-centric digital initiatives - a college portal, mobile app, and a chatbot - to streamline examination processes and provide easy access to essential information.

Inaugurating the initiatives, Karnataka Higher Education Minister Dr MC Sudhakar said that such advancements ensure timely and accurate information, eliminate confusion, and reduce the dependency on intermediaries.

The college portal consolidates crucial data about colleges, including infrastructure, course fees, and faculty details, allowing students to make informed decisions before option entry. It also enables students to report excessive fees directly to the Fee Regulation Committee. Earlier, students had to depend on the scattered sources for information and the new college portal consolidates all relevant data in one place, with colleges themselves having been given access to upload their information directly to the portal. It provides detailed insights into each college's infrastructure, academic environment, hostels, classrooms , faculty details and more, enabling the students to know well about the college and campus culture. "Many students, unaware of college conditions, make choices blindly and later request changes. This portal will help avoid such issues," Dr Sudhakar said.

The KEA mobile app provides all the services available on the KEA website, including application submission and fee payment, making it particularly beneficial for rural candidates who were depended on cyber centres and often made errors during online application and seat allocation processes. Additionally, the app also features push notifications to keep students updated.

The KEA chatbot, powered by AI, has already served over 1.35 lakh students, offering instant responses to queries. All official KEA information is uploaded to the chatbot system and candidates can simply type their questions and receive accurate responses.

Currently available only in English, a Kannada version is expected within a month.

The minister also said that the government is set to revise the rule under which engineering colleges were allowed to charge and additional fee for various skill-based training programmes. "The police will be revised next year. The government will assess what training each college is offering and then re-evaluate the fee structure," he added.

Consortium of Medical, Engineering and Dental Colleges of Karnataka will begin its seat allotment only after KEA's first round, he said. The government is also considering reducing fees for unfilled engineering seats and reviewing the increase in computer science seats.

Marginalised youth get spl skill training

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

IN a bid to make India's digital workforce more inclusive and future-ready, the Nasscom Foundation in collaboration with IG Group, a global fintech company, has trained 2,000 marginalised youth across Karnataka, Maharashtra, and Delhi NCR under its Skilling and Employability Program for Youth.

With a strong focus on Tier 2 and Tier 3 towns, the initiative aimed to bridge the education-employment divide by offering employment-linked training in emerging technologies. Women made up 60% of the participants and of those trained, over 480 have already secured employment.

Training was delivered through a two-tier model — while 1,200 youth underwent a Digital 101 course to build foundational digital skills, 800 were given specialised training in areas such as Business Process Management (BPM) in Finance and Accounting and Banking, and Data Science and Analytics. All participants received certificates on successful completion, and training was conducted in-person at partnering colleges and institutions.

"India's demographic dividend can only translate to economic strength if we invest in the aspirations of its youth. Through our partnership with IG Group, we've created meaningful pathways for employment and inclusion for over 2,000 young individuals, many from underrepresented backgrounds," Jyoti Sharma, CEO, Nasscom Foundation, said.

The program also prioritised the professional development of faculty, with 15 trainers undergoing a structured 30-hour Faculty Development Program to enhance their delivery in core subjects. Students, meanwhile, benefited from holistic development through soft skills training, communication workshops, industrial visits, expert lectures, and career counselling.

Artists, community groups decry curbs at 'open & free' Cubbon Park

GAYATHRI M KURUP @ Bengaluru

CUBBON Park has long served as a sanctuary for artists, readers and community groups, offering a peaceful retreat from the city's hustle and bustle. But newly imposed restrictions, including a cap of 20 people per gathering and a ban on banners, posters, balloons, kites and other materials have cast uncertainty over the future of many communities that depend on the park as a free and open space.

"We've been gathering here for years, and there's truly no better place for our community. It's accessible to all and open spaces like these naturally encourage more participation—something that just doesn't happen in enclosed venues," said Jino, founder of the Tables and Stools Community. "These restrictions are troubling because there's no alternative venue which is both open and free. If we're forced into fragmented or paid spaces, our community risks becoming commercialised, and that's not our intention," he added.

Bengaluru skaters have also faced challenges in the park over the years, including repeated bans and prolonged negotiations with the horticulture department. "While it's good that skaters are no longer treated like second-class citizens, the 20-person cap on gatherings still raises questions. Rather than enforcing blanket rules, the authorities should implement targeted policies with penalties for actual violations," said Divye Karde, founder of the Cubbon Park skating group.

Adithi Balaganesan, admin volunteer with the CJ Memorial Trust, said, "Cubbon Park is a public space, and we need to strike a balance between preserving it and enabling communities to actively engage with it. From yoga groups and skaters to dog lovers, readers, children, morning walkers, and others give this park its spirit. The goal shouldn't be to restrict use, but to encourage stewardship. When people feel a sense of belonging, they naturally care for the space. That's how a public park thrives— through shared respect and responsibility."

A board at Cubbon Park lists activities that have been prohibited | VINOD KUMAR T

V Ravichandar, a civic evangelist, said, "The horticulture department needs to adopt a public service mindset instead of clinging to a controlling attitude about park maintenance. Here, unfortunately, it feels more like a 'sarkari gated community' guarded by bureaucracy, which is different from the other part of the world."

In response, Kusuma G, Deputy Director of Horticulture at Cubbon Park, said, "These regulations have existed informally for the past five years, but are now being enforced as an official order. Large gatherings cause damage to the park, a heritage space. The guidelines are designed to preserve the park's flora and fauna, ensuring its accessibility for everyone. Communities are still welcome to gather, as long as they obtain prior permission and respect the space."

PETER VIDAL

13TH May : It's a fine day for all Cancerian people today - and that doesn't just mean those of you born with the Sun in this secretive sign. It's actually favourable for everyone who is prepared to base their lives on their feelings and who place the highest value on the truth. I hope that includes you!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
The fact that the Moon is in a lively mood should be sufficient to persuade you that other people are on your side. In fact, the more personal contacts you build up now, the better. You're intense and passionate, but the question you face is how on earth you can put your dreams into practice.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
You'll soon be hitting a more energetic phase - if such a thing were possible - so keep your eye on the long-term picture and go the whole hog when dealing with anything connected with your broader interests and ambitions. Plus a partner who was once so irritable, could be displaying hidden reserves of charm.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
There's no doubt that you'll be able to get important projects off the ground, this week. It is up to you, though, to see that all practical arrangements are absolutely crystal-clear and confirmed. Otherwise, other people will pick up the wrong end of the stick - and run with it.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
This is certain to be an action-packed week and your determination to bring an uncertain phase to an end should be successful. It's all too easy to be swept away by your feelings, so it is essential to maintain a grip on all practical angles and details.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
Travel plans, new projects and adventures are well starred, although Mars' imminent change of position means that you have very little time left to finalise arrangements. Move fast to secure agreements because otherwise they could come badly unstuck.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
Recent planetary patterns have undoubtedly helped you gain your independence in one area, but may have made you increasingly reliant on partners in another. Such contradictions are inevitable, but there is no reason why you shouldn't turn them to your advantage.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
You must accept what takes place now as a signal to settle rifts or disagreements with partners and close companions. However, it is less incumbent on you to keep the peace by yourself. Instead, you can encourage partners to play their proper part.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
Several planets are now aligned with the early regions of your sign, arousing a spirit of argument and debate. You may be taken aback by somebody's attitude, but that's no reason to let them walk all over you. It's just a matter of finding the middle way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
This is without a doubt one of the most confusing and exacting periods of the year for you and for many people in your social circle. Or is it? Think again. It's in the nature of your current transits that reality is likely to be obscured by layers of misunderstanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
Although partners have been bringing a little light into your life, you may have felt that just the opposite was true. Often it has seemed that you have been bowed down by personal responsibilities, but not for much longer. What seems far more likely now is that you'll begin to climb out of a deep hole.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
Events at work may have made you regret taking others at their word. Yet, within a few days, Mercury will have adopted a position which allows you to put your ideas across with poetic flair. You'll be at your most inspired around the end of next week.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
Recent lunar twists and turns have done a great deal to establish your social confidence. New community responsibilities may beckon for those of you who have tasted collective action and have decided that you like it. You'll get a good feeling from being involved and appreciated.

Holy texts desecrated, communal tension on Belagavi outskirts

Books were found at a construction site

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Belagavi

IN a disturbing incident, unidentified miscreants desecrated copies of the Quran and Hadith kept at a mosque in Santi Bastwad village on the outskirts of Belagavi. The religious texts were found at an under-construction site next to the mosque.

The incident came to light early Monday morning when people came to the mosque to pray and found the Quran and Hadith missing from the ground floor of the mosque. After searching, they found the holy books in the plot. The situation quickly became tense at Santi Bastwad and adjoining areas.

Belagavi Police Commissioner Iada Martin and DCP (Law and order) Rohan Jagadish rushed to the spot and arranged heavy police bandobast to prevent the situation from going out of control.

A large number of Muslim youth protested in front of police officials, demanding that the culprits be arrested within two days. They said previous similar incidents had not led to any arrests as the police had not taken stringent measures.

The protesting youth wanted to march from Chennamma Circle to the DC's office. When the police denied permission for protest at Chennamma Circle and instead told them to hold their march near Visvesvaraya Technological University premises the protesters shouted slogans and blocked the Belagavi-Goa road near VTU.

Within a few minutes, hundreds of people gathered and marched from Santi Bastawad to Rani Chennamma Circle, a distance of 8 km, shouting slogans like "Bharat Mata Ki Jai". A tense situation prevailed at Chennamma Circle, and roads leading to the circle were blocked as a precaution. The nearly one-hour protest caused traffic jams on several connecting roads.

Two months ago, Santi Bastwad had experienced communal tension after a Hindu girl eloped with a Muslim youth on February 22.

The girl's mother had filed a kidnapping case, but it came to light later that the girl had eloped willingly.

Miscreants torch doc's house, guard sustains burns

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

A 44-year-old security guard of a doctor's residence sustained burns after four unidentified miscreants tried to set fire to the house in the early hours of Saturday.

The accused, who rode up on separate two-wheelers, splashed petrol on the gate, car and portico of the house leading to the entrance, and set it on fire.

The guard, who was near the gate, sustained burns. The doctor's brand new car was damaged in the fire, along with walls and other interiors of the portico.

The arson took place at the residence of Dr BS Gangadhar (67) on 4th cross of Bapuji Layout, between 12.20am and 12.25am. The security guard, Thyagaraj, who is undergoing treatment, is said to be out of danger.

In his complaint, the doctor stated that he has been living in the house with his family for the past eight years. The doctor has estimated a loss of Rs 45 lakh in the fire.

"On July 30 last year, there was a similar incident at the pharma company belonging to the doctor's son Dr Thushar, in MRBH Colony in Vijayanagar, where two miscreants had set fire to the doors of the company. In October last year, two persons had reportedly stolen the company's CCTV cameras. Dr Thushar had filed a complaint at Govindarajanagar police station. Both the cases are under investigation. Since all the cases have a similar pattern, it is suspected that somebody known to the complainants must be behind the incidents," said a police officer.

Based on Gangadhar's complaint, Chandra Layout police registered a case of attempt to murder (BNS 109), mischief by fire (BNS 326(g)) and other sections of BNS.

VIKASH Kumar Vikash, Additional Commissioner of Police (West), told the media that the security guard told the police that the intruder was dressed in black, covered his face with a mask and had gloves on with a gun pointing at him.

"There was some movement on the third floor as per the initial CCTV footage. But no further visuals are available as the c," he added. Saidulu Advath, DCP (North), supervised the operation. The Subramanyanagar police have registered a case.

34-year-old reality show winner Rakesh Poojary collapses, dies

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Udupi

THE winner of a Kannada reality show and Kannada and Tulu film actor Rakesh Poojary (34) died after collapsing at a friend's mehendi event in Miyar, Karkala, on Monday.

In a complaint, Rakshith, from Tonse, Udupi, stated that Poojary had been suffering from thyroid issues for the past 10–12 years. At 1.15 am, after attending a mehndi event in Miyar village, Poojary experienced chest pain. He was quickly taken to a hospital and later shifted to the Karkala government hospital at 3.10 am. Doctors declared him dead, and an unnatural death report has been registered at the Karkala town police station.

Poojary was the winner of a comedy reality show on a Kannada channel. He began his theatre journey with the Chaitanya Nataka Kalavidaru troupe and entered Kannada television and cinema through the Tulu comedy reality show. He acted in the television serial 'Hitler' and in Kannada films such as 'Pailwaan' and 'Idu Enthaa Lokavayya', as well as in Tulu movies like 'Petkammi', 'Ammer Polisaa', 'Umil', 'Illokkel', among others.

He was also a well-known artist in Tulu plays, Bale Telepale. A video of him seen at the Mehendi function has gone viral. Reportedly, Rakesh recently finished filming 'Kantara Chapter 1'. He is survived by his mother and sister. Fans, actors, relatives and friends paid their last respects to the departed soul. His final rites were conducted at the Hoode Billava cremation ground in the evening.

SC survey under credibility cloud, community leaders worried

Some enumerators lack in training; Caste certificates not being insisted on, say leaders; Rise in Beda Jangama population to be brought to panel's notice

DEVARAJ B HIREHALLI
@ Bengaluru

AUTHENTICITY is going to be a challenge for the ongoing Scheduled Caste (SC) internal quota survey with some leaders of the community questioning its conduct.

Apart from technical glitches early on, there are allegations that some enumerators lack in training and enthusiasm.

A hurried job would reduce the Justice H N Nagamohan Das Commission to the fate of the Socio Economic Educational Survey (SES-2015) by Backward Classes Commission, which some communities dubbed unscientific, according to certain SC communities' leaders.

The leadership of SC left and SC right communities has questioned how mere self-declaration would lead to credibility in the absence of caste certificates.

They fear that considerable number of non-SCs would enumerate themselves falsely as 'beda jangama' and it would change the caste equation.

During the 2001 census 'beda jangama' number was about 4,000 across the state and restricted to four or five districts, that grew to 54,000 in 2011 and in the SES-2015 it was around 4.4 lakh.

"Over a period of time thousands have taken false caste certificates as 'beda jangama' and if their number increased further in the Das commission report it would add to the mess", said C Bhanuprakash, a DSS leader.

He also raised the issue of lack of training for enumerators and lack of Android cellphones. He alleged that they were conducting the survey in a jiffy.

Some activists have also raised the issue of the government spending Rs 100 crore for the survey but not fixing the remuneration for enumerators.

INTERNAL QUOTA SURVEY AT A GLANCE

Door-to-door survey May 5-17
Special camps May 19-21
Self-declaration online May 19-23

25 lakh Total SC families
77.14 LAKH Non-SC houses visited

As on May 12, 12.28 LAKH PEOPLE have been surveyed. Offline survey to be validated: 50,685 FAMILIES

63,112 Enumerators assigned
58,697 Enumerators on the field

Social Welfare Department Commissioner Dr K Rakesh Kumar told TNIE that he has received several complaints by the communities' leaders.

"We will bring the issue of rise in the population of 'Beda Jangama' to the notice of the commission," he said.

On the issue of teachers and anganwadi workers conducting the survey without seeking replies of the SC families for all the 42 questions in the questionnaire, he clarified that the enumerators while conducting the survey online cannot leave any of the spaces blank.

"If they have done it offline, at the places where the network connectivity is an issue, we will send them back and action will be taken", he said.

In places where there is an issue of network the enumerators are allowed to do it offline and upload the data later, he added.

The government will soon resolve the issue of remuneration for them which includes cell phones, he said.

Justice Das speaking to TNIE said that just by self declaration as 'beda jangama' no one would be entitled to caste certificates as the revenue department has to authenticate it.

"The census will be finished by May 23 as 50 per cent of the SC families, 12 lakh, are already covered," he said. In urban areas such as Bengaluru, more enumerators will visit areas where there is high density of SC population, he added.

The BBMP has been asked to take action in this regard and set up a control room, he added.

The government has asked the commission to submit its report in 60 days after the completion of enumeration.

Min wants organ retrieval centres at all dist hosps

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

HEALTH Minister Dinesh Gundu Rao on Monday directed officials to establish organ retrieval centres in all district hospitals across Karnataka to boost organ donation and transplantation under the Jeevasarthakate programme. Chairing a review meeting at Arogya Soudha, the minister stressed the need to increase efforts to retrieve organs from brain-dead individuals in government hospitals and medical colleges.

Questioning the lack of initiative at the district level, the minister said, "Why are district hospitals showing lesser interest in this? All district hospitals and medical colleges must start organ retrieval centres immediately."

During the meeting, officials were also asked to explore the model followed by Kasturba Medical College and Research Institute (KMC&RI) for establishing Human Leukocyte Antigen (HLA) laboratories. The minister instructed that HLA labs be set up under Bangalore Medical Services Trust (BMST) at three locations in the state.

Key decisions were taken at the meeting to strengthen organ donation and transplantation efforts in Karnataka. These included the renewal of registration of the Jeevasarthakate Society, expansion of operational zones from five to seven, formation of a steering committee, and revision of the kidney allocation policy to ensure adequate distribution of organs.

Siddu turns tables on BJP over price rise, holds PM responsible

K SHIVA KUMAR @Mysuru

CHIEF Minister Siddaramaiah lashed out at BJP for its Jan Akrosh Yatra, a rally against increase in prices of essential commodities in the state, and turned the tables on the opposition party, blaming the BJP-ruled central government for the rise in prices.

He accused BJP of opposing the guarantee schemes that have contributed to economic empowerment and development of people. He compared the prices of petrol, diesel, cement, silver, gold, gas and other commodities during the UPA government and Modi dispensation.

He said the yellow metal that was Rs 28,000 for 10 gm has touched Rs 1 lakh under Modi, which has made it difficult for the poor to afford even the mangalsutra. Jan Akrosha (fury of the people) is against the Modi government and not the Congress government in the state, which is delivering on the principles of Buddha, Basava, Ambedkar and Gandhi, he claimed.

Speaking at the 134 Ambedkar Jayanti celebrations at HD Kote, he said people should know facts on price rise and not go by the bundle of lies peddled by BJP. He said that everyone should be tolerant towards other religions and castes as the country is known for its inclusiveness.

He said social evils like the caste system will fade away if every section of society is economically empowered. Society will progress when people get enough opportunities to achieve, he added.

On internal reservation for Scheduled Castes, he said the committee headed by Justice Nagamohan Das is carrying out the caste census in three phases to get empirical data and to end confusion.

Paying rich tributes to Ambedkar, he said the Constitution has given opportunities to oppressed sections to educate and organise, and to occupy top positions in democratic institutions.

On Opposition claims that the state government is bankrupt, he said they have distributed benefits and development works amounting to Rs 140 crore in HD Kote. "I have given Rs 8,000 crore grant to legislators, Rs 52,000 crore for guarantees and Rs 80,000 crore for development. BJP raised a hue and cry over increasing the prices of milk, while the government has transferred Rs 4 per litre to milk producers," he added.

Big bash in Oct to celebrate Anganwadi golden jubilee

ENS @ Bengaluru

KARNATAKA will celebrate 50 years of the Anganwadi initiative with a grand golden jubilee in Bengaluru this October. Women and Child Welfare Minister Laxmi Hebbalkar said the event will recognize the efforts of thousands of Anganwadi workers who have played a crucial role in early childhood care and development across the state.

The minister said Union Minister for Women and Child Welfare Annapurna Devi will be invited to the celebrations. "We have spoken to Chief Minister Siddaramaiah. Over one lakh Angwanwadi workers, helpers and others will attend the event," she said.

Hebbalkar, who reviewed the Integrated Child Development Services (ICDS) meeting on Monday, stressed on starting LKG and UKG classes. "We need to start LKG, UKG in Anganwadi centres to keep operational," she said. She urged Deputy Directors and Child Development Project Officers to ensure these classes are launched. The meeting included updates on several initiatives under the ICDS, such as Poshan Tracker indicators, grant utilization, construction of Anganwadi buildings, recruitment of workers and helpers, and distribution of Ayushman Bharat health cards.

CALL AN ALL-PARTY MEETING ON CEASEFIRE, CM URGES PM

K SHIVA KUMAR @ Mysuru

CHIEF Minister Siddaramaiah on Monday urged Prime Minister Narendra Modi to convene an all-party meeting and a Parliament session to discuss the recent ceasefire with Pakistan and other related matters. He emphasised that the Union Government should have called an all-party meeting before the announcement of the ceasefire to keep the public informed about the developments.

Speaking to reporters here, he said that the credit of Operation Sindoor should be given to the Indian Armed Forces, rather than to any political party. He also refused to compare the present war-like situation with the India-Pakistan War of 1971, and clarified that they stand by the Centre's decision. Regarding the ceasefire violations from across the border, he mentioned that there are DGMO meetings between India and Pakistan, adding, "Let us wait for the outcome of these crucial meetings."

Further, he said that except for three children under the age of six, all other Pakistani citizens have left Karnataka. He explained that a woman from Mysuru, accompanied by her Pakistani husband and their three children, had arrived at the India-Pakistan border, but since there was no one to receive them, they had to return to Mysuru for 'technical reasons'.

When asked whether the government will go ahead with its celebrations to mark Congress' two years in office, since the war-like situation is under control now, Siddaramaiah said they had put off celebrations planned in Vijayanagara district. He added that they will now talk to AICC general secretary in-charge of Karnataka Randeep Singh Surjewala, Leader of Opposition in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi and AICC president Mallikarjun Kharge to go ahead with the celebrations.

Asked to rate his government's performance, Siddaramaiah said the Congress government has walked the talk, fulfilling guarantees promised to the people. He also brushed aside any cabinet reshuffle in the near future.

'GOVT DISAPPOINTED INDIANS WITH TRUCE'

KALABURAGI: "Our soldiers destroyed terrorist hideouts. But the Centre disappointed the Army and common citizens with the decision of ceasefire," said RDPR Minister Priyank Kharge on Monday. He told the media that Pakistan is not a trustworthy country. "Indian soldiers attacked and destroyed the bases of terrorists who attacked our citizens. However, the ceasefire has been declared. Who should declare it and on what criteria? What action should be taken if the ceasefire is violated," he asked. He demanded that the Centre convene a special Parliament session and reveal the reality to the people. "The Kashmir imbroglio is a bilateral issue, but has now been made an international issue with the intervention of the US. Who is Donald Trump to announce a ceasefire," he asked. Kharge said, "Trump has used the word 'common sense' and his posts seem like an advice to the Centre. Why are the PM, EAM and NSA not telling the people the truth about the ceasefire?" He added, "For foreign policies to be strengthened, it is not enough for the PM to hug foreign PMs. He has to hold talks with them." He said America has not condemned the terrorist act, while China and Turkey supported Pakistan. The International Monetary Fund announced a loan to Pakistan, which means the Indian government failed to convince the IMF about Pakistan's support to terrorism and to not extend loans to the neighbouring country. This gives rise to an opinion that the foreign policy of our country is faltering, he claimed. ENS

HORATTI QUESTIONS PM FOR HALTING MILITARY ACTION AGAINST PAKISTAN

BELAGAVI: Legislative Council Chairman Basavaraj Horatti on Monday questioned Prime Minister Narendra Modi for halting military action against Pakistan, stating that it should not have been stopped under any circumstances. Speaking to the media in Hukkeri town of Belagavi district on Sunday, Horatti expressed his disapproval, saying, "Pakistan should have been completely destroyed. They attacked again after the ceasefire — that itself shows stopping the war was a mistake." He further lashed out at external interference, particularly criticising US President Donald Trump's role as mediator. "Who is Trump to mediate between India and Pakistan? Will America listen to us if we intervene in its affairs," he questioned. Horatti emphasised that Pakistan would never act in India's interest and should always be considered an adversary. He urged the Indian government to take a more uncompromising stance, saying Modi should have made a firmer decision, instead of yielding to foreign influence. On the broader issue of terrorism, he called for a global summit involving all countries to jointly root out and destroy terror networks, underscoring that leniency and diplomacy would only lead to repeated attacks. ENS

STATE GOVERNMENT DELIVERED ON ITS PROMISES, SAYS SHIVAKUMAR

BENGALURU: As it approaches its completion of two years in office, the state government has delivered on its promises, said Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar. Speaking to the media on Monday, he said the celebration of the government completing two years in office is not limited to the government, but to all the people of the state. One lakh patta khatas will be issued by the Revenue Department to mark the occasion, he said. Shivakumar said they were thinking of postponing the celebrations of the government, in view of the conflict on India's borders. "Now that the ceasefire is in place, we have decided to go ahead with the programme. We have asked district in-charge ministers and MLAs to organise meetings of party workers and officials at the district level," he said. Shivakumar said they will invite national leaders for the two years' celebration as well. ENS

When asked, Deputy Chief Minister and KPCC President DK Shivakumar said this was a 'small mistake' and 'a mischief.' "The post has been deleted and we have removed those responsible for the post from the social media team," he said. In December 2024, during the Congress Working Committee meeting held in Belagavi there were posters across the town carrying a distorted map of India, leading to huge embarrassment for the party. These controversial posters were removed later.

Spl court raps Lokayukta cops, orders re-probe against ex-min, excise officials

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE special court to try criminal cases against sitting and former MPs/MLAs set aside the closure report filed by the Lokayukta police in a case involving former excise minister K Gopalaiah and other officials. They had allegedly committed violations while granting permission to KN Resources Pvt Ltd to export 2 lakh metric tonnes of molasses from 2021 to 2023. The court directed the Lokayukta police to investigate the case in accordance with law and submit the report within three months.

Besides Gopalaiah, the court directed the probe against then excise commissioner J Ravishankar, then Undersecretary to the Finance Department Manjula Nataraj, then secretary to the Finance Department Dr Ekroop Kaur and then additional chief secretary of Finance Department ISN Prasad.

The court said the statements of Ravishankar, Kaur and Prasad recorded by the investigation officer clearly indicated that some permits were also issued in the past deviating from the mandatory M2 license. The authorities are bound to explain why such irregularities are being continued, and the illegality cannot be perpetuated, it said.

"The closure report indicates that no loss has been caused to the government exchequer. However, on careful appreciation of the materials, it is noticed that a sum of Rs 458 per MT was required to be paid towards export, and the approximate loss, which is calculated by the complainant, is Rs 9.16 crore. However, without adhering to the basic principles, the impugned act was committed," the court observed, pointing to a series of lapses in the probe.

"Considering the entire records and also by looking into the materials available on record, it would clearly indicate that the investigation conducted by the Karnataka Lokayukta is not in accordance with the law," said Special Court Judge Santhosh Gajanan Bhat.

The court ordered the investigation into the private complaint filed by Manjunath S, vice-president of Lanchamukta Karnataka Nirmana Vedike. The Lokayukta police filed a closure report on October 12, 2023 after conducting the preliminary investigation. But Manjunath challenged it arguing that it was shoddy and lacked clarity.

The court said it will be appropriate to remind the investigating agency that there cannot be any direct evidence with respect to the commission of an offence under Section 120-B of the IPC. It is a cardinal principle of law that criminal conspiracy will be hatched in darkness and committed in secrecy. The investigating agency should have joined the leads which were available in the case to ascertain whether any offence was committed. It seems that the investigating agency, without looking into these aspects, straightaway came to a conclusion that there are no materials to hold that the accused persons committed offences, the court observed.

"It is rather unfortunate to note that the complaint averments indicate that the accused persons have committed offences punishable under Section 477-A (falsification) of the IPC. However, the non-application of mind by the IO concerning the said offence itself would create a shadow of doubt in the manner in which the investigation process is conducted," it observed.

War of words over US 'mediation'

'No third party involved'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

UNION Minister for Heavy Industries and Steel HD Kumaraswamy on Monday said that it was wrong to say that the ceasefire between India and Pakistan was owing to US mediation. Pakistan has engaged in various diplomatic theatrics to save face on the global stage, Kumaraswamy, a former chief minister, told the media in Bengaluru.

"India has never agreed to third-party intervention on Kashmir, nor have we given any such opening. The Prime Minister has clearly reiterated this stand. On matters of national interest, Prime Minister Narendra Modi has never compromised," Kumaraswamy elaborated.

He further said that there was an argument in some quarters that a full-scale war was necessary to dismantle Pakistan's terror infrastructure. On the other hand, some cite the current state of the Russia-Ukraine war as a cautionary reference, he said. "The Union Government is carefully considering all aspects. But if Pakistan fails to learn its lesson even now, it will face India's wrath in the days ahead," he warned.

The Union Minister said that everyone should support the PM's decisions on issues of national interest. "Since the Pahalgam attack, the entire country has witnessed how the PM has handled the situation. The PM, along with the defense minister, has conducted several high-level meetings. The government has taken bold steps in the interest of national security," Kumaraswamy said.

OPERATION SINDOOR

Terrorists launched a brutal and barbaric attack on Indian tourists in Pahalgam, he recalled, and added that, in retaliation, Indian armed forces destroyed terrorist camps operating from across the border.

"The Pakistani military, which was nurturing terrorism, launched attacks against India, and we have responded accordingly," he added.

'It is a strategic blunder'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

CONGRESS MLC BK Hariprasad on Monday hit out at PM Narendra Modi, saying that he allowed US President Donald Trump to mediate a ceasefire between India and Pakistan.

Hariprasad, a Congress Working Committee (CWC) permanent invitee, said,"It could be termed a strategic blunder, as Foreign Secretary Vikram Misri announced a ceasefire following Trump's claim that he mediated. It is unfortunate that Modi allowed third party intervention. It is a deviation of the 1972 Simla Agreement, when the then PM Indira Gandhi said that no country should intervene in the affairs of both countries. What forced Modi to do so?" he told the media."The ceasefire was declared on the instructions of a third country. From now on, Modi cannot claim to be a vishwaguru because Donald Trump is now a world guru. The people of India and the soldiers were supportive but why did you (Modi) throw cold water on the expectations of the people of the country?" he said.

"Disturbing that US President Trump announces a ceasefire when India's official stance is clear—no third-party involvement. Why are our people and even defence forces unaware? Indira Gandhi once told Nixon— India won't be dictated to by powers sitting oceans away. Today, this Modi government bows first by slashing tariffs, now by staying silent on foreign meddling. Is this the strong leadership we were promised?" he posted on 'X'. "We had an opportunity to teach Pakistan a lesson. But now it has slipped away. They (Modi government) had said that they would capture PoK....We are not the weak ones who can be bothered by third parties. The unity and integrity of the country is important," he said.

Harprasad's charges come at a time when the government has also made it clear that India sees no role for external intervention in the matter.

CPM calls for all-party meeting on ceasefire

THANJAVUR: On the heels of the Congress' demand for an all-party meeting to discuss the India-Pakistan ceasefire, the CPM also demanded such a meeting. U Vasuki, a member of the Polit Bureau of the CPM, said such a meeting is warranted in the wake of new revelations about 'Operation Sindoor' and to clear doubts whether third party meditation was there to achieve the truce.

Cybercrooks hacking devices through fake news on India-Pakistan conflict

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

Not every exclusive update on the India-Pakistan conflict is safe. Cybercriminals are spreading fake visuals, phishing links and malicious APKs through these updates to steal data and hack devices. Bengaluru Police Commissioner B Dayananda on Monday warned citizens to be cautious of such messages sent through WhatsApp and emails.

He shared a video on the official page of Bengaluru City Police, stating that cyber criminals are taking advantage of the tension on India-Pakistan border by spreading fake news and sharing malicious links. Cashing in on people's curiosity, criminals are sending messages claiming to provide exclusive updates or leaked footage related to the India-Pakistan conflict. These messages often contain fake links that can download malware onto users' devices. Clicking such links could result in your personal data being stolen, he warned. He said cyber criminals are circulating videos, images or files with names like ArmyJobApplicationForm.pdf. Emails are another method used for these attacks. "If you receive an email from an unknown sender claiming to extend offers, urgent updates or job applications, do not open it," he cautioned.

He advised people not to open unknown files received through WhatsApp or social media, not to forward suspicious content and to only download apps from official sources like Play Store. "Do not click on forwarded links claiming to show conflict updates or sensitive footage. Avoid downloading attachments or clicking on links in unsolicited emails. Always be cautious with shared content," he added.

TTD to set up urban design & planning cell

TIRUMALA: The Tirumala Tirupati Devasthanams (TTD) has initiated a landmark urban development plan for Tirumala with the Andhra Pradesh government approval to set up a dedicated Urban Design and Planning Cell. The decision, approved in a recent Cabinet meeting, is the first such initiative in four decades, led by TTD executive officer J Shyamala Rao. According to official sources, the UDP Cell's focus areas include urban planning, architecture, and infrastructure optimization. Priority projects involve the construction of a modern Central Reception Office, redesigning shopping complexes, food courts, and eateries (both TTD-run and private), and planning new roads, footpaths, and essential buildings. Additionally, the UDP Cell will assess existing structures, recommend demolitions or reconstructions, and ensure that all new developments align with temple traditions and Hindu cultural aesthetics. ENS

Kids of pourakarmikas, mahouts scale peak

KARTHIK K K @ Mysuru

IN a moment of unparalleled pride, a team of eight pourakarmikas' children, mahouts, forest guards, and other civilians from Mysuru achieved a historic feat by scaling the 13,990 ft Mt Kuari Pass in Uttarakhand.

The expedition, named 'Junoon-2025', was spearheaded by Tiger Adventure Foundation in collaboration with The Mountain Goat, and others and the group, despite a somber national mood following the April 22 Pahalgam terrorist attack that claimed 26 lives, took part in the expedition with determination and completed.

Led by Anil Kumar A, lecturer at Marimallappa PU College, the team of 24 included children of pourakarmikas, mahouts from the Hunsur forest division, forest beat guards, housewives and students from Shashwath Seva Samaj School.

Anjana, who took part in the expedition said, "My parents sell vegetables for a living. This trek gave me a chance to dream beyond my circumstances."

After mandatory medical check-ups in Pipalkoti, the team reached Tugasi Base Camp on April 27 and gradually acclimatised before ascending to Guling and Khullar. A minor health scare on the first day, involving a nasal block, was handled swiftly by the support team, showcasing the preparedness and care embedded in the mission, revealed the team members.

As they ascended the challenging trail of crevasses, glaciers, and gusty winds, the team's resolve only grew stronger. On May 1, the Indian tricolour was hoisted atop Kuari, marking what organisers called the "first-ever summit by pourakarmikas' children, forest guards, and mahouts in India's adventure history".

HC quashes criminal case against Veeraiah

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court has quashed the criminal case registered against the former chairman of D Devaraj Urs Truck Terminal Limited, DS Veeraiah, for misappropriation of funds, as no prior sanction was obtained to prosecute him.

"The prior approval under Section 17-A of the Prevention of Corruption (PC) Act is admittedly not granted. Therefore, the prosecution wants to build its edifice on shifting sands. Sanction obtained post-facto under Section 19 of the PC Act cannot cure the threshold illegality of not having prior approval under Section 17-A of the PC Act. Therefore, the foundation being infirm, the structure cannot be sustained. Section 17-A of the PC Act cuts at the root of the matter. The petition thus deserves to succeed," the court said.

Justice M Nagaprasanna passed the order recently while allowing the petition filed by Veeraiah questioning the legality of the crime registered against him by the Managing Director of the Terminal on September 22, 2023, with Wilson Garden police station.

It was alleged in the complaint that works close to Rs 47.10 crore that were undertaken during the period of the petitioner and accused No.1 were found to be suspicious, as the works were awarded to the contractors without taking recourse to the provisions of the Karnataka Transparency in Public Procurements Act, 1999.

The counsel appearing for the petitioner contended that the petitioner, being a public servant, at the relevant point in time, working as chairman of a government enterprise, prior approval under Section 17-A of the PC Act 1988 ought to have been taken from the competent authority for any investigation to commence. Though the offence under the IPC was registered, it was factually, in its entirety, an offence under the PC Act, he argued.

Odisha sizzles, Sambalpur hits 42.9^0 C

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bhubaneswar

HEAT and humidity seared the state on Monday with temperature in many parts of the state crossing 40^{0}C.

Sambalpur recorded the highest day temperature of 42.9^{0}C followed by Jharsuguda 42.2^{0}C, Balangir 42.1^{0}C and Boudh 42^{0}C. Day temperature in Sambalpur was above normal by 1.5^{0}C, Jharsuguda 0.7^{0}C and Balangir 0.2^{0}C.

Twin City Bhubaneswar and Cuttack recorded 40.4^{0}C and 40^{0}C, respectively. The day temperature was above normal by 2.9^{0}C in the state capital and 2.7^{0}C in neighbouring Cuttack.

Citizens experienced blistering conditions due to the combination of heat and humidity. The regional met office said coastal districts recorded high humidity levels on the day. While humidity in Puri stood at 83%, Balasore recorded 81 per cent, Paradip 80% and Gopalpur 76%. Bhubaneswar and Cuttack recorded 62% humidity each on the day.

Though the regional met office has withdrawn the heatwave warning for Odisha this week due to the anticipated thunderstorm activity, hot and humid weather conditions are expected to prevail in parts of the state, including coastal districts, till Friday.

"Some places including the coastal districts are experiencing high humidity due to the moisture carrying southerly and south-easterly winds blowing towards the state. The interior districts are witnessing hot weather because of the warm and dry north-westerly winds," said the regional met office.

Meanwhile, the met office has forecast light to moderate rain or thundershower activity in southern districts as well as Mayurbhanj, Keonjhar, Balasore and Bhadrak on Tuesday.

Karnataka's GTTC to set up skilling centre in Namibia

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

KARNATAKA'S Government Tool Room and Training Centre (GTTC), known for its industry-linked vocational training, is set to expand its global footprint through a proposed collaboration with Namibia. The Africa India Economic Foundation (AIEF) has put forward a plan to establish a GTTC in Namibia, with the state-run institution serving as the knowledge and technology partner.

In a recent meeting with Medical Education and Skill Development Minister Dr Sharan Prakash Patil, the AIEF highlighted GTTC's success as a robust training model suited for Africa's industrial skilling needs. Operating for over five decades, GTTC runs more than 20 centres across Karnataka, offering training in precision toolmaking, CNC operations, mechatronics and robotics.

"GTTC has a strong alumni base of over five lakh skilled professionals, a curriculum tailored to current industrial demands, and deep connections with the manufacturing sector," Anil Sinde, general secretary of AIEF, said, highlighting that its operational model can be seamlessly adapted to African conditions.

AIEF, which works to strengthen ties between India and 54 African countries in areas such as knowledge exchange, technology, trade and investment, has the backing of the African Union (AU). Its proposals were formally welcomed during the AU summit in Addis Ababa in 2020. As part of this broader India-Africa vision, IIT Madras had also set up its first overseas campus in Zanzibar in 2023.

R Kanchanavelu, joint secretary of AIEF, said Namibia was a strategic choice due to its political stability, English-speaking population and growing sectors such as marine industries, energy, agribusiness, logistics and tourism.

"Namibia is also richly endowed with natural resources like uranium, diamonds, gold and rare earth minerals—making it an ideal partner," he added.

Dr YK Dinesh Kumar, managing director of GTTC, said the collaboration would not only create employment opportunities for GTTC-trained professionals across Africa but also open markets for Karnataka-based MSMEs.

"This partnership is about more than training—it's about showcasing Karnataka's strength in skilling on a global stage through education diplomacy," he said.

Minister Patil welcomed the proposal and instructed officials to take the discussions forward. "This initiative positions Karnataka as a global skilling hub. GTTC's expertise in toolmaking and advanced manufacturing is now set to have a global impact," he said.

BJP to launch nationwide 11-day Tiranga yatra today

- Just three days after a ceasefire was agreed between India and Pakistan following the success of Operation Sindoor, the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) is set to launch an 11-day nationwide 'Tiranga Yatra'
- The campaign aims to connect with the public and highlight the achievements of the Indian armed forces during the military operation against terrorists based in and backed by Pakistan
- The 'Tiranga Yatra' would begin on May 13 and continue till May 23 across the country. The Tiranga yatra will conclude with a celebration akin a Vijay Diwas that was held during the Kargil war

WARHEADS OF SINDOOR

Armed forces accomplished precision-strikes targeting terrorist infrastructure in Pakistan and PoK. Though the complete and comprehensive list of all major warheads used during the combat remains shrouded in mystery, some of the weapons that played an instrumental role are:

AASM HAMMER precision-guided bombs

Also launched from Rafale aircraft, the Highly Agile Modular Munition Extended Range (HAMMER) bombs provided precision targeting capabilities, minimising collateral damage.

Sudarshan Chakra (S-400) air defence system

While primarily a defensive system, the Sudarshan Chakra played a crucial role in protecting Indian airspace during the operation. It successfully neutralised a significant number of incoming threats, including missiles and drones, ensuring the safety of key urban centres.

Nagastra: Indian Army inducted Nagastra-1, the country's first indigenous loiter munition or suicide drone. Developed by Nagpur-based Solar Industries, Nagastra-1 is a precision-strike drone designed to neutralise enemy targets by crashing into them and detonating. These single-use drones can hover over a target area, loitering until the optimal moment to strike. Their ability to combine surveillance with targeted attack makes them a valuable asset in modern warfare.

Other than these, all frontline aircrafts were used during this operation.

SkyStriker loitering munitions

These loitering munitions, developed in collaboration with Israeli firms, were employed for real-time surveillance and precision strikes on mobile or time-sensitive targets. Also known as a suicide drone or exploding drone, this system is designed to loiter until the target is located, and then crash into it.

Barak-8 system

Barak-8 system jointly developed by DRDO and Israel Aerospace Industries (IAI), played a crucial role in effectively countering missile threats from Pakistan, notably intercepting the Fatah-II SRBM near Hisar. With land and naval variants, it integrates into tri-service operations like Operation Sindoor. Featuring advanced radar, 360° coverage, and Mach-3 speed, the Barak-8 exemplifies India's growing defence self-reliance and technological prowess.

BrahMos supersonic cruise missiles

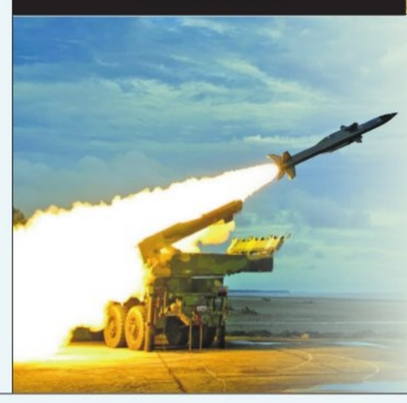
India confirmed the use of BrahMos missiles during the operation. These missiles, known for their speed and accuracy, were launched from ground-based platforms to target specific terrorist camps.

The BrahMos is a long-range ramjet supersonic cruise missile that can be launched from different platforms. This missile is a product of a joint venture between DRDO, India and the Russian Federation's NPO Mashinostroyeniya.

The name "BrahMos" is a portmanteau formed from the names of two rivers — the Brahmaputra of India and the Moskva of Russia.

D-4 anti-drone system

The D-4 anti-drone system, played a crucial role in India's Operation Sindoor by effectively countering Turkish drones used by Pakistan. Developed by DRDO and manufactured by Bharat Electronics Ltd (BEL), the indigenously built Drone Detect, Deter, Destroy (D4) system can conduct real-time detection, tracking, and neutralisation of hostile drones.



Akash: The Akash is a surface-to-air missile system, developed indigenously in India. This has demonstrated its effectiveness in repelling Pakistani drone attacks during this operation. It is believed that. between May 8 and 9, the Indian Army used the Akash system to successfully intercept multiple drones along the western border and the Line of Control in Jammu and Kashmir.

Air Marshal quotes Ramcharitmanas on Op

Verse was cited to embody India's strong response to terror from Pak

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@New Delhi

AT A SERIOUS military briefing, one doesn't expect high literature and text from epics to be quoted by a battle-hardened air warrior to drive home a point. Director General of Air Operations, IAF, Air Marshal A K Bharti, though stunned and captivated a large gathering of journalists by quoting a couplet from Ramcharitmanas to expound on Lord Ram's patience and anger at the Sea God.

Without reading from any paper, the Air Marshal fluently recited the couplet — 'Vinay Na Manat Jaldhi Jad, Bhaye Teen Din Beet, Bole Ram Sakop Tab, Bhai Bin Hoi Na Preet'.

Translated in English, the couplet reads, "The ocean remained unmoved by humble requests, three days passed. Then Lord Rama, with rising anger, declared without fear, there can be no love."

This couplet refers to the time when Lord Rama waiting for the Sea God to grant him the passage to Lanka loses patience after three days and becomes angry. He declares that love does not exist without fear and lifts his bow. Only then does the Sea God appears and helps Lord Ram.

"What message is being given... So, a hint is enough for an intelligent person," Bharti said, as the room broke into applause.

The display of literary prowess was triggered by a reporter's question whether there was any symbolism or messaging in using the Sanskrit hymn dedicated to Lord Shiva in the briefing on Sunday and a famed poetry of 'Rashtrakavi' Ramdhari Singh Dinkar on epic Mahabharata on Monday.

Director General of Air Operations, IAF, Air Marshal A K Bharti

Before the briefing started, the military played on a big screen, a key verse from 'Krishna ki Chetavani', part of Dinkar's timeless classic 'Rashmirathi' in a rock music style rendition, juxtaposed with the images of the Indian military assets — missiles, naval platforms, weapon system, air defence system -- with subtitles.

A montage of images showing damage inflicted by the Indian military under Operation Sindoor played with subtitles such as -- 'heed our advice', 'terrorism will have a cost for Pakistan', 'heavy', 'inevitable', 'unaffordable'.

The message was loud and clear -- India's zero-tolerance for terrorism and its resolute stand to protect the nation's sovereignty and integrity and ensure safety of its citizens.

Cost of terrorism has risen as India ushers in a new normal

JAYANTH JACOB @New Delhi

OPERATION Sindoor marked a decisive shift in India's counter-terrorism doctrine — not merely as a retaliatory action, but as a calculated strategy of cost escalation designed to deal with cross-border terrorism.

By striking terror infrastructure deep within Pakistan and Pakistan-occupied Kashmir (PoK), India signalled that cross-border terrorism would no longer be tolerated without a tangible and rising price.

Indian officials termed the strikes measured, proportionate, and non-escalatory, and the intent was anything but it being business as usual with Pakistan. The goal was to establish a new normal — one in which India responds decisively and with strategic clarity to every provocation, raising the cost for Pakistan's use of terror proxies and resetting expectations for international actors accustomed to Indian restraint.

But the question remains, what would be the threshold for a retaliatory military action?

As explained by Foreign Secretary Vikram Misri on May 7, Operation Sindoor was guided by three core objectives: to prevent further terrorist activity, to deter the use of cross-border proxies by Pakistan-based terror groups, and to pre-empt specific threats identified through intelligence.

This framework aligns with a growing strategic shift in New Delhi's security thinking — limited, intelligence-led, and politically integrated operations that send a long-term message to Pakistan and the international community alike.

The trigger for Operation Sindoor came on April 22, when terrorists trained and armed in Pakistan — operating under the cover name The Resistance Front, a Lashkar-e-Taiba offshoot — carried out a brutal attack in Pahalgam, killing 26 civilians.

New Delhi told the international interlocutors that the massacre was a continuation of Pakistan's long-standing policy of waging proxy war through non-state actors; and responded with calibrated force. The Indian Air Force launched strikes on May 7, hitting terror infrastructure in PoK and Pakistani territory. Within 25 minutes, the primary military objective — neutralising those assets — was achieved.

The larger picture

India is no longer treating terrorism as a standalone security problem but as a foundational obstacle to normal bilateral relations. Cooperation in areas like water, trade, and even fuller diplomatic engagement is now explicitly conditional on Pakistan ending support for terror

But as officials emphasised, the operation's value lay as much in its political and psychological messaging as in the tactical results.

"India exercised its right to respond and pre-empt as well as deter... These actions were measured, non-escalatory, proportionate, and responsible," Misri said on May 7.

Misri's statement reflects India's deliberate positioning — avoiding escalation while refusing passivity.

"The actions taken by India are aimed at creating and setting a new normal in the relationship. Pakistan and the world will have to get used to this new normal because India has had enough," a source explained.

This "new normal" involves using all instruments of statecraft, including military action, diplomatic messaging, and resource leverage. A key element of this pressure is the Indus Waters Treaty (IWT), a long-standing agreement that India now links directly to cross-border terrorism. Thus, the cost of terrorism has risen. India has made it clear that it will suspend cooperation under the treaty as long as Pakistan backs terrorism. This marks a strategic inflection point: India is no longer treating terrorism as a standalone security problem but as a foundational obstacle to normal bilateral relations. Cooperation in areas like water, trade, and even fuller diplomatic engagement is now explicitly conditional on Pakistan ending support for terror.

Following India's May 7 strikes, Pakistan retaliated with attacks on Indian military installations on May 8, 9, and 10. These prompted graduated Indian responses, which initially focused on defensive measures but soon escalated to offensive counterstrikes against Pakistani military infrastructure.

By May 10, Pakistan had launched what Indian officials described as its "most ambitious and wide-ranging attacks," prompting a forceful Indian response. The Indian Air Force retaliated with precision strikes on eight major Pakistani air bases. The damage was significant.

"These strikes sent a clear message: if Pakistan escalates, India will respond in kind — but on its own terms, and with calibrated intensity," pointed out a source.

However, this approach brings heightened international scrutiny, particularly from countries such as the United States.

US President Donald Trump's recurring comments about mediating in Kashmir are viewed as deeply problematic. There is also concern that the growing visibility of India's military responses could draw unwanted conflation between counter-terrorism and other bilateral issues. But Indian policymakers maintain that terrorism is not a bilateral issue — it is a global security threat, and India has the right to act against it, like anyone else. Indian officials maintain that Operation Sindoor achieved all its intended objectives — military, political, and psychological. Terror infrastructures were hit, and Pakistan's cost for backing terrorism was raised.

Layered air defence system minimised scale of damage from Pakistan forces

MAYANK SINGH @ New Delhi

THE INDIAN Armed Forces successfully repelled Pakistan's attacks owing to the layered envelope of its air defence (AD) systems, officials said on Monday during a tri-services special media briefing steered by Director General (DG) of Indian Air Force Air Marshal A K Bharti, DG of Military Operations (Army) Lt Gen Rajiv Ghai, and DG of Naval Operations Vice Admiral A N Pramod.

Air Marshal Bharti emphasised that the joint operations to destroy terror infrastructure in Pakistan-occupied Kashmir and deep inside Pakistan reaffirmed that "India's fight is with terrorists and their support systems. However, it is a pity that the Pakistan military chose to intervene and bat for the terrorists, which compelled us to respond in kind."

Responding to a question about the symbolic use of Dinkar's poetry in the conference's opening video, Bharti invoked a verse from the Ramcharitmanas to underline India's shift in posture.

Air Marshal Bharti said, "Vinay na maanat jaladh jad gaye teen din beeti. Bole Ram sakop tab, bhay binu hoye na preeti", which roughly translates to, 'The ocean, unmoved by polite requests, remained obstinate for three days. Then Lord Rama, in anger, said — without fear, love does not arise'.

Vice Admiral Pramod said the Indian Navy's Carrier Battle Group (CBG) deployment in the Arabian Sea compelled Pakistani air elements to remain bottled up close to their Makran coast.

"This brings me to how the Indian Forces managed to minimise damage to both civilian and military infrastructure despite relentless Pakistani attempts, Air Marshal Bharti said, adding, "through our layered and integrated AD system. It includes assets from the Army and Navy, alongside the primary Air Force elements."

> The older and battle-proven AD weapons like the Pechora, OSA-AK and the LLAD guns performed well, and so did indigenous weapons like Akash
>
> Air Marshal A K Bharti, Director General (DG) of Indian Air Force

The AD system comprises a large variety of sensors and weapon systems — from point defence weapons like the LLAD guns, shoulder-fired MANPADS and short-range SAMS, to area defence weapons like the AD fighter aircraft, and longer range SAMs held in our inventory.

Additionally, the numerous waves of drones and UCAVs employed by Pakistan were also thwarted by the indigenously developed soft and hard-kill counter-UAS systems and the well-trained Indian air defence personnel.

All elements were brought together through the Integrated Air Command and Control System (IACCS) of the IAF, providing the Armed Forces with a Net-Centric Operations capability.

While much has been said and written about the newer systems, Air Marshal Bharti said, "I would like to place on record the performance and efficacy demonstrated by even the older and battle-proven AD weapons like the Pechora, OSA-AK and the LLAD guns, in countering the Pakistani threat vectors in the current operations. Another highlight has been the stellar performance of indigenous AD weapons like the Akash system."

Talking about the Indian Navy's multilayered AD arrangements, Vice Admiral Pramod said that the Indian Navy operates as a composite networked force capable of simultaneously addressing threats emanating from all domains — that is air, surface and subsurface. This, it achieved through an amalgamation of advanced sensors, synchronised on the Combat Management Systems. "In the current standoff, the presence of our Aircraft Carrier with a large number of MiG 29 K fighters and Airborne Early Warning helicopters prevented any suspicious or hostile aircraft from closing the Carrier Battle Group (CBG) within several hundred kilometres," Vice Admiral Pramod said.

He added that the Navy maintains credible capabilities to detect, identify, and neutralise any aerial platform threatening its units at sea.

Lt Gen Rajiv pointed out that in the last few years, the nature of terrorist activities had evolved, with both military and civilian targets increasingly under attack.

"Our accurate attacks on terrorists were done without crossing the Line of Control and the International Border. And we had expected a Pakistani response from across the border," said Lt Gen Rajiv.

"Therefore, we focused on our AD and were already prepared. Our counter-unmanned aerial systems, EW tools and AD weapons were integrated with the IAF system. So, when Pakistan launched continuous attacks on our airfields and IGS installations on the night of May 9 and 10, they failed before this strong air defence grid."

"In contrast to the destruction seen at Pakistani air bases yesterday, our own airfields remain fully functional. Not only this, the attack attempt made by Pakistani drones and weaponised UAVs also failed. Many were neutralised by the grid, and the rest were shot down by shoulder-fired AD weapons."

"When courage is high, even the destination touches your feet," Lt Gen Rajiv concluded.

HOW KEY WORLD LEADERS REACTED TO PAHALGAM ATTACK AND OP SINDOOR

India's Operation Sindoor has drawn widespread attention and praise from international community. Leaders responded with admiration for the precision, humanitarian focus, and swift execution of the operation. Their reactions reflected strong support for India's commitment to global peace, security, and diplomacy

EUROPEAN UNION

The European Union (EU) and its 27 member states unequivocally condemn the heinous terrorist attack in Pahalgam, Jammu and Kashmir on April 22 and the murder of innocent civilians. "Terrorism can never be justified. Those responsible for the attack must be brought to justice. Every state has the duty and the right lawfully to protect its citizens from acts of terror."

RUSSIA

Russia firmly condemns all acts of terrorism and opposes any form of extremism. It is essential for the international community to join forces in combating this global menace. Both India and Pakistan must exercise restraint. We hope all differences are resolved peacefully through diplomatic dialogue.

Maria Zakharova, Russia's Foreign Ministry spokeswoman

ISRAEL

Israel supports India's right to self-defence. Terrorists should know there's no place to hide from their heinous crimes against the innocent

Reuven Azar,
Israel's Ambassador to India

JAPAN

We strongly condemn the terrorist attack in Pahalgam and express unwavering solidarity with India in its fight against terrorism

Gen Nakatani San, Japan's Defence Minister

NETHERLANDS

We express condolence for the horrific cross-border terror attack in Pahalgam. We reaffirm the Netherlands' firm stance against terrorism in all its forms and manifestations

Dick Schoof, Netherlands Prime Minister

UNITED KINGDOM

India has every reason to be outraged by the Pahalgam killings. Such acts of terrorism are completely unacceptable

David Lammy, UK Foreign Minister

No democratic state should tolerate cross-border terrorism

Rishi Sunak,
UK former prime minister

UNITED STATES

India has a sovereign right to combat terrorism

Donald Trump,
United States President

This is fundamentally a regional matter not America's war and not something we should try to control

J D Vance, United States Vice President

FRANCE

We express strong solidarity with India following the Pahalgam terrorist attack and condemn the attack. France, alongside its allies, will continue the fight against terrorism wherever necessary.

Emmanuel Macron,
French President

Kerala man's startup becomes a credible eye in sky amid Op Sindoor

Images shared by Kawa Space become essential tool in decoding the operation's progress

RAJESH ABRAHAM @Kochi

AS OPERATION Sindoor unfolded with strategic precision across India's western front, a lesser-known yet critical player emerged from the digital shadows. Kawa Space, an Indian spacetech startup founded by Thiruvananthapuram native Kris Nair, emerged as one of the most credible sources of satellite-based intelligence during the campaign.

While misinformation spread rapidly on social media, many turned to maps and images released by Kawa Space and its enigmatic founder. The firm's X handles consistently shared high-resolution satellite imagery showing the extent of damage inflicted on Pakistani targets. Crucially, these images have not only added credibility to India's claims but also served as visual proof of the impact of its operations.

The images, shared with credible defence-related websites including Alpha Defence – an independent media firm known for its high-quality commentary on defence, aerospace and geopolitics – have become an essential tool in decoding the progress of Operation Sindoor. On Sunday evening, Nair hinted at a significant development: "The next image analysis report is one hell of a banger." The following day, he posted a cryptic line: "O Black Mountains, what are you hiding in your shadowed heart?"-- accompanied by a wide-angle satellite image believed to show the Kirana Hills, a remote and rocky region in Pakistan's Punjab province long rumoured to house nuclear infrastructure.

While it remains unclear whether the location was targeted, the post sparked intense speculation and drew attention to the growing role of India's private space sector.

Founded in March 2019, Kawa Space was envisioned as a critical application and infrastructure layer for the global space industry. Originally built to serve the broader geospatial tech ecosystem, it has now repositioned itself as a global intelligence and defence space company. "We don't do civilian industry stuff anymore," Nair stated bluntly – a clear signal of the company's pivot towards high-stakes, security-focused operations. "Our mission is to harness the power of satellites orbiting our planet and help people reap their benefits to improve life on earth," he says. Yet, beneath the commercial ambition lies a intense nationalistic drive. "Among our team are those who have worked on every front of sovereignty and national security," Kawa Space says on its website.

"They've flown jet fighters deep into enemy territory, commanded warships, and fought wars you've heard of – and the ones you haven't."

In the face of rampant misinformation, Kawa Space's methodical, evidence-backed assessments have gained the trust of defence watchers, journalists, and policy insiders alike.

In war, truth is often the first casualty. But as Operation Sindoor reshapes regional dynamics, a small satellite startup is making sure the truth – or at least a clearer picture of it – can still be seen, from up above.

ADDED CREDIBILITY

- While misinformation spread rapidly on social media, many turned to maps and images released by Kawa Space and its founder Kris Nair
- The firm's X handles consistently shared high-resolution satellite imagery showing the extent of damage inflicted on Pakistani targets
- Crucially, these images have not only added credibility to India's claims but also served as visual proof of the impact of its operations

Bank guard spends night at ATM kiosk in Uri despite heavy shelling

FAYAZ WANI @Uri

IN A POWERFUL display of commitment to duty, a bank security guard spent the entire night at an ATM kiosk in Jammu and Kashmir's border town of Uri to safeguard the cash, even amid heavy shelling from Pakistani troops.

Abdul Qayoom Awam is posted as a security guard at a J&K Bank ATM in Uri market and has been performing his duties professionally and with full commitment during this distressing time.

"I could not leave the ATM unmanned as there was cash in the machine, and if left unattended, there was a possibility of burglars striking and looting the cash," he said.

He dedicated the night to guarding the ATM, despite the mortar and artillery shelling from Pakistani troops. The border areas of Uri have been most severely affected by the shelling. Recently, a woman was killed and 14 others injured, while over 100 structures sustained damage. Most of the population in Uri has moved to safer locations due to the fear created by continuous shelling.

I could not leave the ATM unmanned as there was cash in the machine, and if left unattended, there was a possibility of burglars striking and looting the cash

Abdul Qayoom Awam

Some of the shells landed just a few kilometres from Awam's post. The shells struck Bandi village, causing damage to residential houses, a shop, and a mosque.

"I could hear the artillery and mortar shelling from across the border, but for me, my duty was supreme," Awam said.

He said that people need to withdraw money from the ATM. "By guarding the ATM all night, I ensured that they could access their money without hassle or delay," he added.

Awam hails from the Sarai Bandi area of Uri, very close to the Line of Control, and said that his wife and parents were home alone while his two sons worked for a private company.

"I didn't tell my family I spent the night at the ATM to guard it. If I had, they would have panicked," he said.

Awam has been on duty since yesterday morning, and if his reliever doesn't arrive today, he will have to spend another night at the ATM kiosk.

"Normally, the cash in the ATM is exhausted in three days, but since the town is now mostly empty and people have fled to safer places, there is still some money in the ATM, and I want to keep it available so that people can withdraw it without inconvenience," he said.

GOVT MUST ACT AGAINST MOB RULE ON SOCIAL MEDIA

PACKS of feral trolls have made swathes of Indian social media as vicious as a jungle raj. The latest high-profile target of online vitriol was foreign secretary Vikram Misri. Warmongers, still boiling with the high-octane heat that the India-Pakistan conflict generated, directed their anger at the senior bureaucrat with 36 years of distinguished service for being the messenger of good news—that a ceasefire had been agreed. To make matters worse, Misri's UK-based daughter was targeted for abuse and doxxing, which involves revelation of personal details. By acting in such a manner at a time of national crisis, the trolls not only inflicted harm on the individuals, but also landed blows on the face of the government presenting India's case to the world.

The barrage came not long after Himanshi Narwal, the grieving widow of a naval officer killed in the April 22 terror attack, was set upon for requesting unity and calm post Pahalgam. As polarisation peaks in other parts of the world, too, such attacks are becoming worryingly common. In the US, judges who delivered verdicts not aligned with the ruling administration's policies are being trolled and doxxed. They have increased the judges' protection details and offered mental health consultation to their families. In India, political leaders and groups such as the IAS and IFS associations for Misri and the National Council for Women for Narwal have strongly condemned the trolling. When the dust settles on the cross-border conflict, the government must work with parliament to bring down the edifice of this social media menace wreaking private trauma and public violence.

Just as the penal code is applied when the public takes the law in their own hands, the Information Technology Act must be sharpened against those who indulge in harmful behaviour online, including when they are targeted at public servants and their families. TV networks must introspect how not to fan the flames of toxic hatred. Cases like the Misris' and Narwal's are not only personal tragedies, but pointers to a dangerous fraying of the nation's democratic temper—that, even when we disagree, we can be polite with each other. If we consider that being a young nation makes India's populace more easily combustible, we must direct all the indignant energy towards nation-building. The other road leads to mobocracy.

REPLACING KOHLI NOW THE BIGGEST CHALLENGE

AS Virat Kohli announced his retirement from Test cricket, the nation collectively drew in a sharp breath. He had sounded out the Indian cricket board three days ago; it was just a matter of time before he would tell the rest of the world. After 9,230 runs, including 30 centuries, in 123 Tests at an average of 46.85, the world's most-followed cricketer will no longer be seen in his cricketing whites. The signs were ominous during last year's Australia series. The cruel hands of time were scything through his form. Apart from a hundred in the first Test, he was tentative and confined to the fringes. With this decision now, Kohli walks into the sunset about three weeks before India embark on a crucial series in England. Just like his shot selections, there was no ambiguity about his call. And as always, he played it with his heart.

Kohli's presence on and off the field attracted a following that could stir up hysteria. His was a rare brand. Just to put it in perspective, one of the most-followed athletes on social media is the richest cricketer in India with the highest brand value. Apart from the brand void, Kohli's Test shoes would also not be easy to fill. He brought into the team a vibrancy that had been missing—the clenched-fist celebrations, the in-your-face attitude, the chest thumpings. He brought in a new energy after Sachin Tendulkar retired with equanimity and poise. Kohli may be gone, but cricket lovers will cherish his legacy forever.

With Rohit Sharma also announcing his retirement from Tests, the selectors and the board will have their hands full ahead of the England tour. They will have to find a captain as well as top-order talent—players not seen as stop-gap fills. Such epoch-ending calls are not new in Indian cricket—Rahul Dravid and VVS Laxman had called it a day after a disappointing Australia tour in 2011. But there was a difference: they had a captain in M S Dhoni and a long home summer schedule for the youngsters to find their feet. This time, the new-look team under a new captain will be thrown into the deep end. It needs to be seen if they can master the challenge without the master.

QUICK TAKE

SKILLS ALIGNED WITH DEMAND

IN a significant move that was drowned in the drone of war, the Union cabinet has approved a scheme to upgrade industrial training institutes and set up of five national centres of excellence for skilling. The plan is to improve the infrastructure at 1,000 ITIs in a hub-and-spoke arrangement with industry players and would-be employers, with courses aligned closer to industry needs. We have often argued for a focus on skilling with a major role of vocational training at the ITIs. It is a sheer necessity in a job-starved, young country where about half the students enrolled in schools drop out by class 8.

Lessons from 1971 tell us that India's strategic interests may not be identical to those of politicians. It's not a time for war cries, but for cold calculations

RIGHT IN THE MIDDLE

SOURAV ROY

THERE is a famous and oft-cited quotation from Shakespeare's Julius Caesar that might be relevant to our times: "There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune." India, by picking up the gauntlet, has done exactly that. It has significantly raised the price of terrorism for Pakistan, thus raising the level of our deterrence. Even more significantly, India may, without boasting, have fundamentally altered the balance of power in the region.

Not being a warmonger, I certainly welcome the so-called ceasefire. Whether brokered by the 'big brother'—US President Donald J Trump—or not is less important. Neither Pakistan nor India can afford a long-drawn war. The cost, to India alone, is reportedly over $80 billion for just four days of what was not even a full-blown war. But we have proved that we are a fighting force that simply cannot be ignored or overlooked. We have shown the world that we can be an important part of the new world order, capable of putting boots on the ground if needed. Not just boots on the ground, but missiles, drones, and much else in the air, beside conventional air, navy, and ground forces.

Which brings us to the crucial question—what next? I am sure that the Indian Prime Minister's Office and strategic teams must have already war-gamed the post Operation Sindoor options. I am tempted, almost, to say 'post Pakistan' instead of 'post Operation Sindoor'. Pakistan, on the verge of bankruptcy, would arguably have been on the brink of collapse had we pushed on for a few more days.

To game an India-positive and terror-negative scenario, let us play scrabble with the letters in our adversary's name. The common belief is that P is for Punjab, A for Afghania (the north-western province), K for Kashmir, I for Indus, and S for Sindh. We will notice that B is entirely absent. For us, on the other side of the border, it should be obvious that if Bangladesh did not belong with Pakistan at partition, neither did Balochistan.

Let's dive into history a bit. What is now Balochistan is one of British India's minor provinces by that name merged with what used to be the larger entity called the Balochistan Agency. A conglomeration of semi-autonomous princely states, the accession of the latter and its subsequent integration into Pakistan were neither smooth nor seamless. As in the erstwhile East Pakistan, there is a widespread perception that the Baloch have received a raw deal from the Pakistan state and have never been happy with their subordinate position.

Unrest in Balochistan has been endemic. The the spectacular hijacking of the Jaffar Express on March 11, with some 380 passengers on board, is only a recent example. Credit for which was claimed by the Balochistan Liberation Army and blame assigned to India by the Pakistan military establishment. Indeed, the Pahalgam terrorist attack was widely perceived as Pakistan's revenge for the Jaffar Express incident.

The liberation of Balochistan, at first, may not seem as a practical or achievable goal for India. For one, Balochistan does not share a boundary with India. Yet, Baloch independence may not require the scale or cost of operations required in the creation of Bangladesh 54 years ago. In this regard, the authority I shall invoke here is the real hero of this great campaign. No, it is not Field Marshal Sam Manekshaw or even Lt Gen Jagjit Singh Aurora.

Instead, I refer to Lt Gen Jack Farj Rafael Jacob, who, as Chief of Staff of the Eastern Command, led the assault on Dhaka. His record of how India won the 1971 Indo-Pak war and helped liberate Bangladesh can be found in Surrender at Dacca: Birth of a Nation (1977) and An Odyssey in War and Peace (2011), his autobiography. In a short piece such as this, it is impossible to summarise the many insights and teachings contained in these two books.

Suffice it to say that there are two kinds of generals—politicos and soldiers. The former curry favour with their civilian masters, the latter do the difficult and dirty work of fighting and winning wars. Unfortunately, the politicos often obtain promotions at the expense of the soldiers. To offer one famous reminder, Gen Brij Mohan Kaul, largely responsible for India's debacle in the Indo-Chinese war of 1962, was promoted by the then Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru as the army chief against the recommendations of his predecessor, Gen K S Thimayya.

Manekshaw, who had seen little action, was also much more of a manager than a soldier. Luckily for India, he was not as bad as Gen Kaul. Jacob's book shows how both he and Gen Aurora were wrong on many occasions. That we won the war was largely in spite of their errors and misdirections.

Generally speaking, public relation experts, credit-hoggers and sycophants rise in our system at the expense of truly competent and upright soldiers or bureaucrats. This must not be repeated in the current fight with Pakistan. India's national or strategic interests, we must recognise, may not be identical to those of political leaders or parties.

In the present case, however, if Prime Minister Narendra Modi succeeds in breaking off another part of Pakistan—something never seriously contemplated, let alone attempted, in the last 50 years—he would change the course of both history and geography of the subcontinent. And those who understand Modi would have us believe that he cares for little more at this stage of his illustrious career than permanently securing his legacy for posterity.

Is it time, to borrow a phrase from 'Jihadi General' Asim Munir's playbook, to go for the enemy's jugular? Certainly, India must carefully weigh such an option. We don't need shrill war cries, but cold, calculated and calibrated actions that will produce lasting results. If A was linked to Operation Sindoor, B for Balochistan may well be on the scrabble board in the future.

WHAT THE REGION'S FIRST DRONE WARFARE TAUGHT US

GROUP CAPT R K NARANG, VM (RETD)

Former IAF officer and Senior Fellow at the Manohar Parrikar Institute for Defence Studies and Analyses

INDIA-Pakistan military engagement came to a pause at 5 pm on May 10 following a telephonic talk between the directors general of military operations of the two countries, with a plan for the next round of talks. However, Pakistan violated the truce barely a few hours later when it launched artillery and drone strikes on the night between May 10 and 11.

Operation Sindoor, launched on May 7 in response to the April 22 Pakistan-backed terror attack on civilians in Pahalgam, has not been formally called off yet, but efforts are on to restore peace. Indian combat aircraft, long-range stand-off weapons, missiles, drones and counter-drone systems played a key role in the operation. However, drones had a unique place due to their disruptive and asymmetric capabilities.

India kicked off Operation Sindoor by striking nine terrorist sites in Pakistan in the early hours of May 7. To prevent escalation, no Pakistani military or civilian installations were targeted. Sindoor (or vermilion) is traditionally worn by married women on the head or forehead, and is wiped when they become widows. This code name was chosen to honour the women who had lost their husbands at Pahalgam.

Pakistan, however, struck Indian military and civilian sites on the night of May 7 using armed unmanned aerial vehicles (UAVs), loitering and other drones en masse, moving up the escalation ladder that India had tried to avoid. The Pakistan Air Force tried to engage the Indian Air Force in aerial battle; in response, the IAF struck deep and neutralised airfields, radars, command and control centres, air defence systems, military installations, and other critical targets and war-waging potential of the PAF.

Pakistan predominantly employed five low-cost options: drones, missiles, artillery guns, terrorism and propaganda. Out of these, the scope and extent of employing four elements—missiles, artillery, terrorism and propaganda—are reasonably well known. However, it is the use of drones that is changing the dynamics of military engagement between the two countries. It remained below the threshold of conventional war despite some initial concerns about nuclear blackmail by Pakistan.

Pakistan's inventory primarily comprised Akinci drones from Turkey, CH-3 and CH-4 from China, manufactured under licence from Italy's FALCO, Luna-2000 from Germany, indigenous Shahpur-2, Shahpur-3, Sarfirosh kamikaze munitions, GM-500 Turah stealth drones, Uqab-II drones, and small drones developed by the country's private entities. Turkey offered not only solidarity to Pakistan, but also supplies of Assiguard Sonagar armed drones and Byker Yika III loitering drones.

Pakistan employed drones en masse for probing and striking at military and civilian targets, and saturating air defences. It also unsuccessfully tried to use drone strikes to create religious disharmony by aiming at religious sites and spreading rumours about similar strikes by India. Its periodic and large-scale employment of drones was effectively countered by Indian integrated air defence and counter-drone systems, and inflicted high attrition on Pakistan.

X.COM

> The first drone fights in the neighbourhood highlighted the prowess of India's indigenous weapons programme. It also pointed to a few other inductions that might help in the future. The focus needs to be on atmanirbharta

India deployed a number of missiles, stand-off weapons, drones, and counter-drone and air defence systems for defensive and offensive operations. Its indigenous systems emerged as bright sparks in this aerial contest. The Akash missiles, radars, loitering drones, drone swarms, D4 (drone detect, deter and destroy) systems, drone jammers, other unmanned systems and Akashteer network were at the forefront. Light combat aircraft and helicopters were ready to take on contingencies. These systems, developed by the Defence Research and Development Organisation, public sector units, startups and Indian innovators played varying roles in this short contest. Its upgraded L-70 and ZSU-23 guns were in action in blunting Pakistan's drone strikes.

The battle experience provided an opportunity to test and validate capabilities, and the limitations and challenges of the indigenous systems. The lessons learnt would help in instituting design improvements, raising quality standards and planning of future upgrades with the end result being better products that are likely to be more robust and could have greater global acceptability in the global market.

The unexpected attack, India's graded response and phased escalation would have given Ministry, users, finance, and other stakeholders an opportunity to analyse challenges that could be leveraged for fine tuning policies, structures and mechanisms for stimulating indigenous research, innovations, spiral development, facilitating smooth procurement of indigenous equipment and their operationalisation.

The aerial contest may have been halted for now, but the threat of rogue and hostile drones and drone swarms may increase in future. The early induction of indigenous quick-reaction surface-to-air missiles or QRSAMs and fire control radars; launching the development of advanced indigenous autonomous anti-aircraft cum anti-drone guns, and using stealth wing flying test bed or SWIFT as armed precision-strike platforms are areas for introspection.

Operation Sindoor is a proof of the salience of thoughtful employment of air power in less-than-war scenarios and the benefits of indigenous technologies. The significant contributions of indigenous drones, counter-drones, missiles, integrated air defence and other systems in defending the country were the result of India's push for atmanirbharta and innovation initiatives comprising indigenous design, development and manufacturing, innovation for defence excellence or iDEX, and the Mehar Baba unmanned aerial system swarm competitions.

Op Sindoor: Paradigm shift from candle lights to BrahMos

PART I

THE horrible picture of Himanshi Narwal, married just a week back, sitting alone by the side of the dead body of her husband with his head smashed by a point-blank gunshot of Islamic terrorists at Pahalgam on April 22, went viral on the national and global media. That unforgettable scene and the unforgivable crime became the theme and symbol for Operation Sindoor, the code for Indian military action against the Islamic terror camps in Pakistan. Ironically, it is an anti-India, anti-Hindu New York Times [May 7] that saw Himanshi as the Indian feminine cultural symbol of Operation Sindoor.

Nine days later, in a blood donation camp on her slain husband's birthday, Himanshi demanded the perpetrators of the Pahalgam carnage be brought to book. That was how the sindoor that the Pahalgam terrorists wiped out from her and 25 other women's foreheads became the spilled sindoor sign in the Op Sindoor code, and the emotive symbol of the national mission to avenge the dastardly crime against Indian women. Indian defence forces executed the mission with such precision and perfection that even the Israelis famous for such actions would learn and benefit from our intelligence and military professionals.

Pakistan as terrorist state

Op Sindoor, which will figure in military history as the most spectacular anti-terror operation anywhere in the world, daring a nuclear power which threatens to press its nuclear button at will, cannot be rivalled even by Israel, the master terror-buster. The reason is simple. Israel faces no nuclear threat. Op Sindoor is also the high vantage point of rising India's war on the terror state of Pakistan, from where the Modi India binned and buried the most dangerous and anti-Indian, anti-human narrative of the Sonia-Manmohan-led India that "Pakistan is not a purveyor of terror but a victim of it."

The shameful endorsement of the terror state of Pakistan as a victim of terror needs to be recalled and its authors shamed, as Op Sindoor finally proved it is a terror state. For, Pakistani generals stood in reverence and paid homage to the most wanted terrorists killed in the operation. In 2011, Pakistan stood naked before the world as a global terror merchant, as the US commandos chasing the 9/11 Osama Bin Laden who massacred over 4,000 men and women, found him in Abbottabad in Pakistan well protected by the Pakistan military. And yet, India under the Congress-led coalition government was busy probing and proving Hindu terror! Until Modi arrived on the scene in 2014 and began to unravel that Pakistan itself is a terrorist state, two generations of Indians were fed on the narrative that friendship with Pakistan was the best way for both to fight terror when it really meant shaking hands with the terrorist! Pakistan is not run by government or law. It is driven by a huge terror architecture.

Op Sindoor is also the high vantage point of rising India's war on the terror state of Pakistan, from where the Modi India binned and buried the most dangerous and anti-Indian narrative of the Sonia-Manmohan-led India that "Pakistan is not a purveyor of terror but a victim of it."

State, army, intelligence, $30 billion—backed terror

Before Op Sindoor is unravelled, the story of how Pakistan's terror infrastructure is structured from the times of Gen Zia-ul-Haq, when the country adopted jihad as a state policy, needs to be told. The Pakistani state, army and intelligence converged to create and sustain a massive global-level terror infra—first backed by the West against Russia in the 1980s, and later for covert war against India. Every nation has an army, but Pakistan's army has a nation, which is Pakistan, is a famous quip in diplomatic circles.

The Pakistan army, which is seen as an icon by its people, dominates not just the national polity; it controls its economy and stock market. The Soldiers Foundation, managed and owned by the Pakistan army, is a huge conglomerate of fertiliser, cement, food, retail, power generation, gas exploration, LPG marketing distribution and financial services companies. It also provides womb-to-tomb benefits to retired Pakistani armymen and their families (Balfour, Frederik. "Pakistan: Armed Forces Inc". Bloomberg 11 Nov 2001).

The share of Soldiers Foundation in Pakistan's stock market capitalisation is, believe it, a shocking 70%! (Pakistan: Army with a Country [2011] by Prof R Vaidyanathan, IIM Bangalore). Pakistan's current stock market capitalisation is $43 billion. It means Pakistan's army has $30 billion in liquid funds. It is with this huge fund that the Pakistan army — which could not win any of the four wars with India — and its Inter Services Intelligence built thousands of madrasas to nurse millions of radicalised youth. From this huge radical catchment area, the government, army and intelligence set up Jaish-e-Mohammed (JeM) Lashkar-e-Toiba (LeT) and Hizbul Mujahideen (HM). The Resistance Front (TRF) and tens of other jihadi outfits were also created to recruit jobless youth to wage a covert war on India with the support of the army and "bleed India with a thousand cuts".

The terror outfits function in Pakistan in the mansions protected by the army, from where the jihadis enter India with army cover, kill and escape with impunity. Even though the state which protects them is a fraudulent legal sovereign, the victim of terror, India cannot hit the terror outfits without violating the alleged sovereignty of Pakistan, which is undoubtedly a jihadi state.

From candle lights ....

Since the 1990s, India has been suffering silently or crying loudly about the terror attacks by jihadi outfits operating from inside Pakistan killing tens of thousands of people. With the Indian state ruled by rickety and weak coalitions from 1989 to 2014, Pakistani terrorists not only operated freely, Pakistan even had the sympathy of the Indian state. When in 2008, Islamist terrorists, including Ajmal Kasab, sent by Pakistan slaughtered and maimed hundreds of innocents in Mumbai — which was witnessed by the whole world on television — the Sonia-Manmohan-run Indian state fervently appealed for peace and harmony, sponsored and led candlelight processions, even empathised that poor Pakistan was also a victim of terror, certifying the greatest terror merchant against India as innocent. They even kept saying that terror has no religion, it is secular! But they turned to say there was in fact Hindu terror, with Rahul Gandhi warning the US that Hindu terror was more dangerous! This was the narrative about terror in India when Narendra Modi led the BJP to win a majority on its own in 2014.

With his image dented all over the world as Hindu nationalist and anti-Muslim, and many countries denying him visas, Modi had to overcome the negative image particularly in the context of Pakistan. He chose to attend Nawaz Sharif's family wedding on December 25, 2015, the way Atal Bihari Vajpayee travelled by bus in Feb 1999 to Lahore — to befriend Pakistan. Within three months of Vajpayee's bus travel, in May 1999, Pakistan launched the Kargil war to stab him in the back. And within seven days of Modi attending Sharif's family wedding, on January 2, 2016, JeM struck at the Pathankot military base, killing seven army personnel and injuring 25 others. Modi realised that in Pakistan neither the prime minister mattered nor the government; what mattered were the terror outfits as the extended arm of the army and ISI.

To gun shots, aerial strikes

When the JeM terror struck Uri and killed 19 Indian soldiers in September 2016, Modi ordered a surgical strike by the army, which crossed the Line of Control (LoC), entered Pakistan-occupied Kashmir (PoK) and killed some 70 terrorists. Modi reversed the Indian response to terror from candle lights to gun shots. In 2019, he improved it further. When JeM struck at Pulwama on February 14 and killed 46 CRPF jawans, Modi ordered the Indian Air Force to cross the LoC and hit the JeM camp at Balakot, which killed as many as 250-300 jihadis. Modi upgraded the Indian response from gun fight in 2016 to aerial bombing in 2019. Pakistan called its nuke command group meeting to threaten India in 2019. Modi brushed it aside. India firmly declared the grammar of its anti-terror action to cross-border attack. Save wailing and complaining, Pakistan could do nothing.

As 2019 ended, Article 370 was thrown into the dustbin. Again Pakistan could only lament and shout. With the surgical strikes and airstrikes that hit the terror launchpads, coupled with greater policing clamping down on terror, Kashmir became peaceful, prosperous. From 86 terror killings in Kashmir in 2018, the count came down to 12 in 2023. Elections were held in 2024. The Abdullahs who opposed the repeal of Article 370 became rulers in Kashmir sans Article 370.

Modi knew that attacking the terror bases in Pakistan would invite a war with the mad Pakistan with nukes in its hands. Yet he decided to initiate that war by his open direction to hit the terror bases, which was like declaring a war and notifying Pakistan "we are going to hit you".

And finally BrahMos

A humiliated Pakistan lost all its senses and struck through LeT's proxy TRF at the unguarded tourist spot in Pahalgam. Worse, it killed tourists after checking their religion and confirming that as mandated by Islamic theology, which governs Pakistan, they killed only Kafirs, that is Hindus. Their theology did not say they should do it in front of the victims' wives and children. But they did that too. Modi vowed India will chase the beastly terrorists, their backers and funders to the ends of the earth and bury them in the soil – an open political direction to the Indian defence, intelligence and diplomatic community. It needed no political pundit to deduce that the PM's direction was to hit terrorist camps in Pakistan. The heart-rending terror left no option to the political system and the leadership but to declare an open war against terror. But this was unlike the US-led war on terror directed against a state – the invasion of Afghanistan. Our war on terror was not to be and could not be an open war against the state of Pakistan. But technically any attack on the terror camps in Pakistan, which are an extension of the state and the army, was an attack on the state of Pakistan itself. Modi knew that attacking the terror bases in Pakistan would invite a war with the mad Pakistan with nukes in its hands. Yet he decided to initiate that war by his open direction to hit the terror bases, which was like declaring a war and notifying Pakistan "we are going to hit you". To execute an openly declared mission, which deprived the Indian army of the surprise element needed for the attack to succeed, was indeed a daunting challenge, as the enemy would be fully prepared to thwart it. Also since it was an openly declared cross-border attack, besides military preparation, it called for extremely skilful diplomatic manoeuvre to gain the support of the major powers of the world for the operation and to minimise opposition.

Within 15 days of the Pahalgam slaughter, Team Modi comprising the tri-forces, intelligence and diplomacy spectacularly accomplished the explicitly declared mission by hitting nine terror bases in Pakistan and killed over 100 jihadis. This time, it was no gun shot as in PoK. No aerial bombing as in Balakot. Modi upgraded his response to the barbaric Pakistan terror to another level — to BrahMos missiles.

How could Modi transform the anti-terror mission, kept secret to launch surprise attacks on terror camps in PoK in 2016 and in Balakot in 2019, into an open and notified mission in 2025 and succeed in it? His preparations for 2025 started after Balakot in 2019 when he realised that an altogether new non-contact war model was needed to target not just terror but its sponsor, Pakistan. The next part is about how the Indian army, air force and navy masterfully and professionally executed that openly declared mission against terror and how they excelled even Israel in an Israel-model attack.

● Airlines to run civil aircraft in a phased manner, issue advisories to customers ● DGMO praises border force anti-drone systems during Operation Sindoor

32 airports, shut due to conflict, reopen for flight operations today

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Ministry of Civil Aviation on Monday declared the resumption of flight operations in the 32 airports shut after Operation Sindoor. However, the airlines will begin running the flights in a phased manner. The airports were supposed to remain closed until May 15.

The ministry said, "Temporary closure of 32 airports for civil aircraft operations till 05:29 hrs of May 15 2025 has been lifted. These airports are now available for civil aircraft operations with immediate effect."

The statement added, "Travellers are advised to check flight status directly with the Airlines and monitor the airlines' websites for updates."

Earlier, the Airports Authority of India issued a Notice to Airmen (NOTAM) giving the green signal for the move.

AAI had directed the closure of 24 airports in Northern and Western India for commercial operations in the aftermath of India's strikes on Pakistan and Pakistan-Occupied Kashmir. On May 9, a revised NOTAM added eight more airports to the list.

The following were the airports shut: Ambala (Haryana), Hindon (UP), Naliya (Gujarat), Sarsawa (UP), Uttarlai (Rajasthan), Srinagar, Awantipur & Jammu (J&K), Amritsar, Chandigarh, Ludhiana, Patiala, Bathinda, Adhampur Halwara & Pathankot (Punjab), Bhuntar (also known as Kullu Manali), Shimla, Kangra (also known as Dharamshala or Gaggal airport, Himachal Pradesh), Kishangarh (Rajasthan), Thoise & Leh (Ladakh), Mundra, Jamnagar, Hirasar (or Rajkot), Porbandar, Keshod, Kandla & Bhuj (Gujarat) and Jaisalmer, Jodhpur and Bikaner (Rajasthan).

Airlines have now begun issuing advisories to their customers. An Indigo release said that flights are gradually resuming as airports reopen. "With the recently closed airports now available for airline operations, we have progressively resumed flights starting today, May 12, 2025."

Air India said: "Following a notification from aviation authorities on the reopening of airports, Air India is working towards progressively commencing flights to and from Jammu, Srinagar, Leh, Jodhpur, Amritsar, Bhuj, Jamnagar, Chandigarh and Rajkot."

Spicejet's update read: "Flight restrictions to/from Leh, Srinagar, Jammu, Dharmashala, Kandla &Amritsar have been lifted."

Force remains on high alert: BSF

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE BSF on Monday said that soon after the government announced retribution for the April 22 Pahalgam attack by Pakistan-backed terrorists, the force remained in a state of high alert along the borders and was actively involved in 'Operation Sindoor'.

During a media briefing, Director General Military Operations (DGMO) Lt Gen Rajiv Ghai praised BSF's effective role in the operation. He said the BSF's counter-unmanned aerial vehicles (UAQVs) systems were integrated into the air defence network of the armed forces to neutralise Pakistan drones.

Officials said the BSF's Western Command, headquartered at Chandigarh, is tasked with deployment and operations along the Pakistan border and is spread into five frontiers. Gujarat, Rajasthan and Punjab frontiers are responsible security along the International Border, and Jammu and Kashmir Frontiers along LoC.

Each frontier is headed by an officer of the rank of IG and has battalions, which maintain a network of border outposts in their sectors, the officials said, adding that over the past few years, the BSF has been facing the challenge of narcotics and weapons smuggling from Pakistan through drones.

"Because of this the BSF worked on counter drone system and developed a robust architecture to meet its operational requirement," a senior official said. Punjab is the most active frontier for drone activities, he said, adding that the state accounts for the largest proportion of drones, drugs and weapons seizures along the border.

Anti-drone systems along the border can detect and neutralise the intruding drones by monitoring and jamming the radio frequencies that link the platform to its controller, officials said, adding that till the end of April, over 70 drones were neutralised by the force.

"BSF has been reviewing and revising its protocols and operating procedures to detect and neutralise hostile drones," an official said.

STRIKE CAPABILITY
Anti-drone systems along the border can detect and neutralise intruding drones by monitoring and jamming the radio frequencies that link the platform to its controller, officials said.

If a woman can fly Rafale, why fewer women allowed in JAG posts, asks SC

SUCHITRA KALYAN MOHANTY
@ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Monday wondered why, if a woman can fly the Rafale, the Army is not appointing women to the Judge Advocate General position. "If it's permissible in the Air Force for a lady to fly a Rafale, what is so very difficult for the Army (to appoint them in Judge Advocate General [JAG] post) in the Army," observed a two-judge bench led by Justice Dipankar Datta.

The bench questioned the Centre about earmarking fewer positions for women, despite claiming the posts to be gender neutral. While observing this, the SC recently reserved judgment in a writ petition filed by two women seeking appointment to the post of JAG (Indian Army) Entry Scheme, challenging the disproportionate vacancies for men and women.

Petitioners, Arshnoor Kaur and another person, claimed that though they secured fourth and fifth positions, respectively, and are higher in merit than male candidates, they could not be selected due to the fewer vacancies earmarked for women.

The court granted interim relief to petitioner 1, Kaur, and directed the Union and the Army to induct her in the next available training course for appointment as a JAG officer.

The court questioned the Union for earmarking fewer posts for women, despite claiming the posts to be gender neutral.

The court was unconvinced by the arguments submitted by the Additional Solicitor General Aishwarya Bhati that the JAG posts are gender neutral and that a 50:50 ratio is the selection ratio from 2023 onwards.

"Gender neutrality does not mean 50:50 per cent. Gender neutrality means it does not matter which gender you come from," the court observed.

Road traffic injuries main cause of death: WHO

KAVITA BAJELI-DATT @ New Delhi

ROAD traffic injuries are the leading cause of death among young people aged 5 to 29, and continue to be a pressing public health concern in the South-East Asian Region, said the World Health Organisation (WHO) on Monday.

On the eighth UN Global Road Safety Week marked biennially, starting on the third Monday of May, the WHO said in 2021 alone, the WHO South-East Asia Region, which includes India, accounted for more than 3,30,000 deaths from road crashes, representing 28% of the global total.

Vulnerable road users - including pedestrians, cyclists, and operators of two-and three-wheelers - account for up to 66% of these fatalities, said Saima Wazed, Regional Director for WHO South-East Asia (WHO-SEARO) region.

Globally, each year, road traffic crashes take a devastating toll on our communities - claiming the lives of nearly 1.2 million people and leaving up to 50 million more with non-fatal injuries, she said.

"These tragedies are not mere statistics. They are about the loss of children, parents, and loved ones - and are largely preventable," she added.

This year, the theme urges the world to make walking and cycling safe for everyone. "Walking and cycling are an integral part of the multimodal transport systems in the Global Plan for the Decade of Action for Road Safety 2020-2030. Pedestrians and cyclists already account for more than one in four road traffic deaths," she added.

She added that the two activities support mental well-being, helping to reduce symptoms of depression and anxiety.

"Road safety is an important element of WHO guidance for healthy cities. The WHO partnership has been working with megacities such as Mumbai and Bangkok to address road safety and promote safe transportation," she added. However, she said that creating safe and accessible roads in the densely-populated cities of South-East Asia is challenging.

For safer roads

Urging all members, civil society, private sector, and communities to push for people-centred mobility policies, safer road design, safe vehicles, and lower speed limits, WHO SEARO Regional Director Saima Wazed, said, "Together, we should ensure that every person can walk and cycle safely in our communities and on roads."

WAR ON CRIME

Over the past eight years, the Uttar Pradesh government has "crushed" organised crime with 230 criminals "neutralised" and dismantled terrorist sleeper cells statewide, a statement issued here said on Monday.

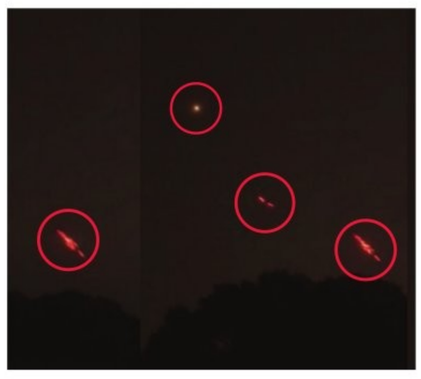
Pak drone incursion in border dist of Samba

A small number of drones were spotted. The Indian air defence system was activated. The drones intercepted and engaged. There is no need to be alarmed.

A defence source

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar



JUST as J&K was limping back to normalcy, the sighting of Pakistani drones in Samba late on Monday renewed concerns about how long the fragile India-Pakistan ceasefire would hold.

Notably, the drone activity along the International Border — confirmed by the Army — came shortly after PM Narendra Modi's address to the nation in which he asserted that India would not hesitate to take forceful measures in its sustained fight against terrorism.

"A small number of drones were spotted. The Indian air defence system was activated. The drones intercepted and engaged. There is no need to be alarmed," a defence source said.

Many displaced residents of the border town of Uri had begun returning to their homes in the border area as the region seemed peaceful, with no cross-border shelling in 24 hours.

Uri was in the direct line of Pakistani fire after "Operation Sindoor"—many who have lost their houses to cross-border shelling wonder where they will live now.

At least 26 people were killed and about a hundred injured in cross-border shelling in the border areas of Jammu and Kashmir since "Operation Sindoor". "I am thrilled that we are returning to our homes. However, cross-border shelling has caused destruction and devastation in Uri. Hundreds of houses and structures have been damaged," said Fazal-ud-Din Naik of Uri.

Fazal, along with his son and other family members, had fled Uri after intense Pakistani shelling and were living in a government accommodation in Baramulla. Thousands like him shifted to various places in the Valley.

"My son and I were injured in the shelling. We are now returning with the hope that the ceasefire will be permanent and there will be lasting peace," he said. National Conference MLA from Uri, Sajad Shafi, said, "The displaced people of six Uri villages returned to their homes today (Monday) after the army and police cleared unexploded shells in the villages. The clearance operation in other villages is ongoing. Once other villages are cleared, the people will also be allowed to return." He said 50,000 people had migrated to safer places after Uri witnessed the heaviest cross-border shelling in all of the Valley. A security official said unexploded ordnance, including rockets and artillery shells above 120mm and other live shells are being identified and destroyed by the army. A middle-aged woman from Uri, Garkote, said though she had returned, she had no place to stay: "Where will we stay as the shelling has damaged our homes?"

An elderly Uri resident, Abdul Aziz, said, "We have heaved a sigh of relief about the ceasefire. However, there is also a concern about where people whose houses have been damaged in the shelling will live."

₹10L for kin of victims

Uri was in the direct line of Pakistani fire after the precision strikes carried out as part of Op Sindoor. A government official said those whose houses have been damaged would be temporarily accommodated in government buildings and panchayats. CM Omar Abdullah has announced ₹10 lakh to families of the victims of cross-border shelling.

Drones sighted in Jalandhar, blackout in Amritsar, airport temporarily closed

HARPREET BAJWA @ Chandigarh

DRONES were reportedly sighted late Monday evening over Jalandhar and Hoshiarpur in Punjab, and a surveillance drone was brought down in Jalandhar.

A blackout was enforced tonight in Amritsar, Hoshiarpur and parts of Jalandhar districts. The Amritsar International Airport has been temporarily closed for civil operations. It reopened this morning. An Amritsar-bound flight from Delhi was asked to turn back.

Sources claimed a drone sighting near Sura Nussa in Jalandhar, near the Indian army's ammunition depot. Another sighting was reported in Unchi Bassi, between Mukerian and Dasuya in Hoshiarpur district, on the Jammu national highway.

Electricity was immediately switched off in some parts of Jalandhar city, Dasuya, and Mukerian. An air-raid siren was sounded in the border city of Amritsar, followed by a blackout.

An IndiGo Delhi-Amritsar flight that was on its way to the holy city from the national capital returned to Delhi. A few other commercial flights were rerouted to avoid overflying that area. The IndiGo flight, which had taken off from Delhi at 8.26 pm, landed back in Delhi around 9.15 pm. Sources said the Amritsar airport has reportedly been closed until further notice.

Jalandhar DC Himanshu Aggarwal wrote on X, "I have been informed that the Armed forces brought down one surveillance drone at around 9:20 pm near village Mand. "

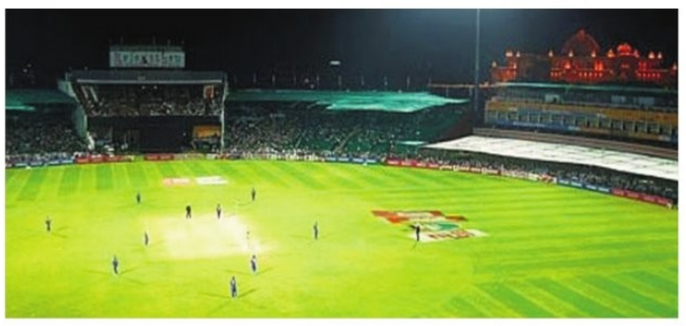
Meanwhile, Hoshiarpur Deputy Commissioner Aashika Jain said, "We got information around 8:30 pm that some objects were spotted in the sky, and this information is still under verification. What kind of objects were those? The armed forces are engaging with them. The blackout is in force until further orders." Amritsar DC Sakshi Sawhney, asked the people to switch off lights and move away from the windows.

17 newborn girls named 'Sindoor' after operation

Kushinagar (UP): Inspired by Operation Sindoor, India's military action against Pakistan, 17 newborn girls here have been named Sindoor. As many as 17 girls born on May 10 and 11 in Kushinagar Medical College have been named Sindoor by their families.

1 held for objectionable video on Pahalgam attack

Surat (Gujarat): Police have arrested a 40-year-old businessman in Surat for posting an objectionable video on a social media platform related to the Pahalgam attack. The man, Dipen Parmar, was arrested on Sunday by Amroli police after he posted a video on Facebook.



Second bomb threat to SMS Stadium in Jaipur

RAJESH ASNANI @ Jaipur

JAIPUR'S Sawai Mansingh Stadium received a bomb threat for the second time in four days and border villages in Rajasthan remained on high alert on Monday despite a pause in India-Pakistan conflict.

The threatening email was sent to the official ID of the Rajasthan State Sports Council, prompting authorities to evacuate the stadium. Anti-Terrorism Squad (ATS) and bomb disposal units searched the stadium premises to ensure there was no explosive device. On May 8, a email from a Pakistani IP address warned that the stadium would be bombed in response to 'Operation Sindoor', police said. Meanwhile, uneasy calm prevailed along the India-Pakistan border. Border villages of Jaisalmer remained on high alert amid reports of sighting of Pakistani drones, officials said. "Blackout was observed in the border districts of Rajasthan on Sunday night as a precautionary measure," a police official said.

In the past three days, villagers have reported loud explosions with many housed developing cracks. Residents say villages near areas of military movement face the highest risk, as these are often targeted by Pakistani forces.

Jaipur traders have decided to install emergency sirens in the city's marketplaces. The sirens, funded by the traders, will be used to alert the public swiftly in case of any threat. "If any emergency arises, these sirens can help alert people before chaos erupts," said a trader.

FADNAVIS TAKES STOCK OF MAHA SECURITY

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

MAHARASHTRA Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis on Monday reviewed Mumbai's security with top military officials and said Pakistan indulged in a proxy war because it cannot fight a direct war with India.

After the review, he said, "Cross-firing and attacks have been ongoing for the last few days. Given this situation, we must take corrective and precautionary measures. That strategy was discussed in this meeting."

Regarding Mumbai's security, the chief minister said, "Mumbai is India's financial capital. In previous attacks, the enemy tried to target this economic hub. In the times ahead, we must work with full strength. So, the exchange of intelligence is crucial. Everyone must be more vigilant regarding cyber-security. Senior state government and defence forces officials must work together in greater coordination."

He informed that the meeting also discussed improved intelligence sharing, greater use of technology, necessary precautionary measures, and the expected cooperation from the state government to the defence forces. Deputy Chief Ministers Eknath Shinde and Ajit Pawar were present at the meeting.

BJP MP criticises party district leadership

Fresh unrest gripped BJP in Gujarat's Bharuch after Member of Parliament P Mansukh Vasava slammed the party over the appointment of Jhagdiya and Valia taluka office-bearers. Taking to social media, Vasava accused the leadership of favouring Congress defectors while ignoring loyal workers and social equations, stoking anger among cadres. District BJP chief Prakash Modi admitted that the party MPs and MLAs failed to come together, exposing widening internal cracks.

MLA brings humour to serious meeting

Vadodara's Manjalpur MLA Yogesh Patel recently convened a meeting with ward councillors and office-bearers to review grant-funded developmental works. The meeting focused on expediting pending BJP projects and finalising new proposals. As councillors detailed grant allocations, Patel quipped, "If you are writing details of my account, submit yours too," sparking laughter across the room. Patel's banter underlined a strategic urgency beneath the humour.

14 booked for posts hurting Army's morale

As part of its crackdown against anti-national elements in the state during 'Operation Sindoor', the Gujarat Police booked 14 people for posting negative, demoralising content on social media. Acting on instructions from MoS for Home Harsh Sanghvi and state police chief Vikas Sahay, the Intelligence Branch and Social Media Monitoring Unit identified posts spreading false information, rumours, and jeopardising army morale. Cases were registered immediately.

39 Bangladeshi nationals land in police net for overstaying

HARPREET BAJWA @ Chandigarh

THE Haryana Police on Monday detained 39 Bangladeshi nationals, including 11 women and 14 children, for illegally residing in the Hansi area of Hisar district.

As per initial investigation, those detained had illegally crossed the border from Bangladesh and were working at a brick kiln on Tosham Road. None of them possessed valid documentation to stay or work in India. A police official requesting anonymity said the police are further probing the case. He added that security and intelligence agencies are also looking into the matter. "All available documents related to the migrants are being collected, following which they will be sent to a designated detention camp in the national capital." Sources added that all the detained Bangladeshi nationals are in police custody.

It is learnt that around a month ago, the owner of the brick kiln had brought them from Rajasthan to work at the kiln there. A few other families had joined them just a couple of days ago. Some of the families possessed Aadhaar cards issued in West Bengal.

Sources said that a drive has been launched to identify any Pakistani or Bangladeshi nationals residing illegally in the area.

Mission D-3 shows results in tribal dists

ANURAAG SINGH @ Bhopal

WHAT began as a silent movement by tribal youths last November to liberate marriages from dowry, liquor, DJ music, has turned into a force to reckon with in just six months.

Titled Mission D3, the movement has spread to every corner of Bhil and Bhilala tribe dominated Jhabua and Alirajpur districts of western Madhya Pradesh. The initiative has succeeded in saving poor tribal families from falling in the debt trap of private money lenders for financing the 3Ds — dahej (dowry), daroo (liquor) and DJ music — in marriages.

On May 11, a Bhil tribe family in Kaliyavav village of Alirajpur district, married their daughter sans the three evils. "There is no place for all three Ds in my daughter's wedding. We've completely kept the marriage simple, where traditional musicians armed with dhols and madals are belting out old tunes," the bride's father Thawar Singh said at the wedding ceremony. The local MLA and MP minister Nagarsing Chouhan was also present.

A month ago, Mukesh Patel, the former Congress MLA from Alirajpur seat married off his daughter Puja, without any DJ music. "My district Alirajpur, follows a practice of close relatives bringing DJ music parties as gifts. As part of the ongoing Mission D3, my daughter's wedding card clearly banned the entry of DJs, while only allowing traditional music players."

On November 17, 2024, young social activist Nitesh Alawa, along with his supporters, started the movement to rid the marriages from the 3Ds. "Be it Alirajpur or the neighbouring Jhabua, the 3Ds has become an integral part of marriages.

Earlier, even the poorest of families had to spend between ₹1 lakh and ₹5 lakh for dowry, liquor and DJ music. Unable to meet the high expenses, they fell in the trap of local money lenders. Once the marriage was solemnised, the newly-weds, instead of enjoying their marital life, were forced to migrate to adjoining Gujarat and work as labourers to repay the loans taken by their parents. With active cooperation of public representatives and powerful men of villages, we spread the movement across several villages."

A senior journalist of Jhabua-Alirajpur region Chandrabhan Singh Bhadauria said, "While Alawa and other tribal youths led the mission in Alirajpur, in the adjoining Jhabua district, the police led by district police chief Padam Vilochan Shukla, has joined forces with local residents in ensuring its success through awareness meetings at individual village level.

Movement saving poor from falling into debt trap

Titled Mission D3, the movement has spread to every corner of Bhil and Bhilala tribe-dominated Jhabua and Alirajpur districts of western Madhya Pradesh. The initiative has saved poor tribal families from falling in the debt trap of private money lenders for financing the 3Ds — dahej (dowry), daroo (liquor) and DJ music — in marriages.

Nine women among 13 killed in C'garh accident

EJAZ KAISER @ Raipur

THIRTEEN people, including nine women, were killed and at least 12 injured when a truck carrying them collided with a trailer late Sunday night on the outskirts of Raipur.

"A group of people from Chataud village was returning home after attending a family function at Bansari village. The goods truck they were travelling in collided with a trailer coming from the opposite direction near Saragaon on Raipur-Balodabazar road," Raipur additional superintendent of police Kiran Rathore said on Monday. "Two girls and a six-month-old infant were among those killed. A police team rushed to the accident site to assist in the rescue operation," he said.

The injured were rushed to the community health centre at Kharora and Dr Bhimrao Ambedkar Hospital in Raipur.

"District administration officials also reached the spot. A case has been registered and the incident is being probed. The deceased were relatives. The police in their preliminary findings suspected that rash negligent driving led to the accident," Gaurav Singh, Raipur collector who supervised the rescue operation, told this newspaper. Chhattisgarh CM Vishnu Deo Sai announced an ex-gratia payment of ₹5 lakh to each of the families of the 13 people killed in the road accident and ₹50,000 each for the injured. "Instructions have been given to ensure proper treatment to the injured," the CM said.

Former CM Bhupesh Baghel said, "In the last two days, 23 people have died in various road accidents. The government should take it seriously."

NDA sweeps panchayat elections in Assam, Cong completely decimated

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @ Guwahati

THE BJP-led NDA swept the Assam panchayat elections, decimating opposition parties, particularly Congress, with counting of votes continuing for the second day amid tight security.

When official figures last came in at 7 pm on Monday, the BJP and its ally Asom Gana Parishad (AGP) bagged 307 out of the 397 Zila Parishad seats. The Congress was a distant second with 62 seats. Other smaller parties and independent candidates won 28 seats.

The BJP-AGP combine won 1,409 of the 2,192 Anchalik Panchayat seats, Congress 122 seats and others 41. Earlier, 2,912 candidates had won uncontested; 2,567 Gram Panchayat wards were contested without party affiliations.

The Congress suffered a huge setback in upper Assam, particularly in Jorhat and Sivasagar districts where the party failed to win a single Zila Parishad seat. Congress leader Gaurav Gogoi represents Jorhat in the Lok Sabha.

The panchayat elections were billed as the semifinal of Assembly polls, due early next year. Buoyed by the results, Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma exuded confidence that NDA would win around 95 of the 126 Assembly seats. "Towns and cities have been our strongholds traditionally. Now, we have performed very well in villages. There is a strong possibility that we will win around 95 seats in Assembly elections," Sarma told the media.

Terming the outcome as a victory for development and progress, state BJP president Dilip Saikia said people had cast their votes to "further accelerate the unstoppable momentum of progress under Himanta Biswa Sarma government." The polls were held in two phases on May 2 and 7 in 27 districts. Over 74% of the eligible voters had voted across 25,007 polling stations.

B'desh bans publicity for those charged under anti-terror law

Ban in place till a special tribunal completes a trial over deaths of people killed during a three-week uprising led by a student platform last year

DHAKA

BANGLADESH has banned the publication or dissemination of statements and any other publicity of individuals or organisations charged under a revised terrorism law, a day after it disbanded deposed prime minister Sheikh Hasina-led Awami League's activities until the trial of its leaders under the same law.

President Mohammed Shahabuddin Sunday night promulgated an ordinance amending the Anti-Terrorism Act which prohibits such activities.

The President signed the draft hours after the Council of Advisers or the interim Cabinet led by Chief Advisor Muhammad Yunus approved the ordinance to amend the Anti-Terrorism Act-2009.

The law ministry later published the Anti-Terrorism (Amendment) Ordinance, 2025.

The revised law prohibits any form of publicity, including press statements, social media content, or public gatherings in support of such individuals or entities.

The development came a day after the interim administration slapped the ban on the Awami League's activities.

The ban will be in place until a special tribunal completes a trial of the party and its leaders over the deaths of people killed during a three-week uprising led by a student platform last year. It also broadened the scope of restrictions by replacing the previous reference to "listed individuals or banned entities" with a more general phrase: "any individual or entity against whom action has been taken under sub-section (1) of Section 18" of the anti-terrorism law.

Yunus's office earlier said that since there is no provision in the existing Anti-Terrorism Act on the ban of activities of any entity, it was appropriate and necessary to further amend the 2009 law to make it time befitting.

Hasina's 16-year-long Awami League regime was toppled on August 5 last year in the student-led violent mass uprising, prompting the 77-year-old former prime minister to flee to India.

Three days after her ouster, Yunus took charge as the chief adviser of the interim government. Hasina and many of her party leaders have been facing hundreds of cases, including those of mass murder and corruption, since then. Most of her party leaders and ministers in her government have either been arrested or fled abroad.

JUMBO DEATH SPARKS CALLS FOR CROSSINGS

Viral images of an elephant trying for hours to save her calf after it was hit by a truck in Malaysia has prompted calls for dedicated wildlife crossings in the animal-rich country. The truck collided with the elephant calf early on Sunday morning on a major highway in the north of the country. The jumbo was later moved to rejoin its herd.

Market rallies 4% on ceasefire, US-China deal

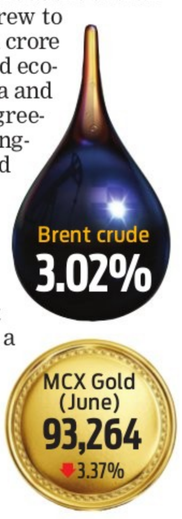
Gold prices fall more than 3% on Monday as global trade uncertainties subside

ARSHAD KHAN @ New Delhi

DOMESTIC equity market witnessed one of its biggest rallies on Monday, with the benchmark indices - BSE Sensex and NSE Nifty - logging their biggest intraday gains in the last four years amid improved investor sentiment.

The rally was primarily fuelled by easing geopolitical tensions between India and Pakistan as the nations announced a ceasefire to avoid further escalation. Further, the US and China coming to a trade deal provided a big boost as it eased global trade tensions. BSE Sensex skyrocketed 2,975 points or 3.74% to settle at 82,430, and the Nifty50 surged as much as 917 points or 3.81% to close the session at 24,925. This was the highest one-session percentage gain for the benchmarks since 1st Feb 2021.

The broader market participated in the rally, with the Nifty Mid-Cap index and small-cap index gaining over 4% each. The rally made investors richer by over ₹16 lakh crore as the overall market-cap of all companies listed on the BSE grew to ₹432.47 lakh crore. The figure stood at ₹416.40 lakh crore on Friday. "Confluence of positive geopolitical and economic developments — the ceasefire between India and Pakistan, coupled with a breakthrough trade agreement between the US and China — sparked the strongest daily market rally in recent times," said Vinod Nair, research head, Geojit Investments. The US and China on Monday announced a 90-day suspension of part of their tariffs. As per the joint statement shared by both countries, the US will be cutting tariffs on Chinese goods to 30% from 145% for a period of 90 days. China has announced that it will bring down the tariffs on US goods to 10% for a 90-day period. The announcements had a favourable impact on the Asian market with Chinese, Korean, Japanese and Hong Kong markets gaining between 1% and 3%. The US market is expected to open with sharp gains as the deal would reduce inflationary pressure and pave the way for more rate cuts by the US Federal Reserve.



While equities gained, gold prices fell sharply by ₹4,000 to ₹93,264 on the MCX, following a major de-escalation in global trade tensions. The US-China trade deal triggered a rally in the dollar index, which surged above $101.50, eroding appeal of gold as a safe-haven asset. "Gold faces resistance in the ₹94,000–₹95,000 range, while the next major support lies at ₹90,000. With safe-haven demand fading, further downside can't be ruled out if global risk sentiment remains stable," said Jateen Trivedi, VP Research Analyst - Commodity and Currency, LKP Securities.

US tariff: India may lose advantage

DIPAK MONDAL @ New Delhi

WITH the US and China reaching an agreement to significantly reduce tariffs on each other's imports, India may lose the edge it had gained from the earlier imposition of reciprocal duties.

The US had initially levied an additional 26% tariff on imports from India—much lower than the 145% imposed on Chinese goods. At the time, the view was that this skewed tariff structure could help India attract manufacturing operations shifting out of China. However, on Monday, China and the US reached a deal under which the US will cut tariffs on Chinese imports from 145% to 30%, while China will reduce duties on US products from 125% to 10%. These reductions will not impact any sector-specific tariffs or exemptions that existed prior to April 2, 2025.

Currently, Indian goods face a 10% baseline duty in the US, after Washington decided to pause the 26% reciprocal tariff for 90 days. The narrowing of this tariff gap could intensify competition for Indian exporters. "It could entail stark competition for Indian exporters considering the narrowing of the tariff gaps between Chinese and Indian exports," says Krishan Arora, Partner and Leader, India Investment Advisory Services at Grant Thornton Bharat LLP. He adds that India Inc must now revisit its production and logistics costs and develop more efficient value chains to remain competitive in export markets. Since the US ramped up tariffs on Chinese imports to 145%, India had hoped to benefit from the high tariff differential.

Apple had even announced that the majority of iPhones sold in the US during the April–June 2025 quarter would be manufactured in India, fueling hopes that a broader shift of manufacturing from China to India was underway.

However, with the new deal, that shift now seems uncertain. "While low-investment assembly operations may linger in India for now, deeper manufacturing— the kind that builds real industrial ecosystems — may stall or even return to China," says Ajay Srivastava, Founder, Global Trade Research Initiative (GTRI).

Meanwhile, Deepanshu Mohan, professor of economics at OP Jindal University, says an immediate reorientation of supply chains was unlikely, even under earlier high-tariff regime. He adds that export-competitive manufacturing in India remains limited, and expecting significant gains from reciprocal tariffs was not realistic.

Trump plans up to 80% cut in US drug prices; may hit India's exports

DIPAK MONDAL @ New Delhi

INDIA'S $7 billion pharma exports to the US could face a major setback as President Donald Trump is set to sign an executive order aimed at slashing prescription drug prices in the United States by up to 80%.

In a post on the social media platform Truth Social, Trump said: "For many years, the world has wondered why prescription drugs and pharmaceuticals in the US were so much higher in price than they were in many other nations…"

He promised that prescription drug and pharmaceutical prices would be reduced, almost immediately, by 30% to 80%. "They will rise throughout the world in order to equalise and, for the first time in many years, bring fairness to the US. I will be instituting a most favoured nation (MFN) policy, whereby the US will pay same price as the nation that pays the lowest price anywhere in the world," he said. As per experts, the move is likely to trigger a global price recalibration — with pharma giants intensifying pressure on lower-cost markets like India to raise their prices by tightening patent laws via trade negotiations. "While the move promises major savings for US consumers, it could face industry pushback and cause price rise in lower-cost countries," says Saurabh Agarwal, tax partner, EY India.

India has long resisted the pressure to adopt additional patent protections pushed by developed countries via free trade agreements (FTAs). These include data exclusivity, automatic patent term extensions, patent linkage, patentability criteria, and evergreening practices. But things may change.

Trump's MFN pricing policy should be a wake-up call. As pharma companies face tighter price controls in the West, they will redouble their efforts to raise prices in markets like India

Ajay Srivastava, founder of GTRI

"Trump's MFN pricing policy should be a wake-up call. As pharma companies face tighter price controls in the West, they will redouble their efforts to raise prices in markets like India. ," says Ajay Srivastava, founder of the Global Trade Research Initiative (GTRI).

'Indian start-up ecosystem is maturing, GenAI sees funding'

UMA KANNAN @ Bengaluru

THE Indian start-up ecosystem is maturing with a huge amount of investments getting into deeptech & Gen AI space, and we have a lot of tailwinds in a country like India, said Kumara Raghavan, Head, Startups, AWS (Amazon Web Services) India and South Asia.

India has about 5 million software developers, the second largest developer nation in the world, according to Evans Data Corporation. In an interaction with TNIE, Raghavan said, "A key component of that is also to get the right amount of skills. With something like generative AI, you need skills, not just for the developers, but also for the business user, and that's an area that we are investing into."

In 2025, AWS announced plans to invest $8.3 billion into cloud infrastructure in the AWS Asia-Pacific (Mumbai) Region in Maharashtra, to further expand cloud computing capacity in India. AWS has trained over 5.9 million individuals in India on cloud skills since 2017. If you look at the way the investments happen in the country, historically, the largest amount of funding goes into fintech, followed by ISVs(independent software vendors), which are building in India for the world, he said.

"Third would be the ecommerce and then a variety of categories like health and property tech. But I think one of the interesting observations that we saw last year was there's a lot of money that went into ecommerce and the quick commerce space," he said.

Will double balance-sheet, profit in next 5 years: Yes Bank CEO

BENN KOCHUVEEDAN @ Mumbai

AFTER years-long effort, Yes Bank has finally found an investor with Japanese financial powerhouse Sumitomo Mitsui Banking Corp (SMBC) buying 20% share in the bank.

The Japanese bank last Friday became the single largest shareholder with the acquisition of 20% stake for ₹13,483 crore or ₹21.5 per share, through a secondary stake purchase. SBI has sold 13.19% of its 23.97% holding with 115% gains on its investment made in March 2020, and other banks Axis Bank, Bandhan Bank, Federal Bank, HDFC Bank, ICICI Bank, IDFC First Bank and Kotak Mahindra Bank together selling 6.81% stake at ₹21.5 per share.

In an interview to TNIE, CEO Prashant Kumar tells that this investment, which is the single-largest foreign direct investment to date in the banking space, marks a pivotal step in the next phase of growth.

"With SMBC becoming our largest shareholder, we expect to benefit from their global expertise and high governance standards. This investment is also a powerful endorsement of our transformation journey and future potential," says Kumar, adding that over the past a few years, the bank's growth has been shaped by the strong partnership and the unwavering support of SBI, which will continue to remain a valued stakeholder.

The CEO expressed confidence that the bank will double the balance sheet, which was at ₹5,30,713 crore as of March 2025, of which ₹2,46,188 crore was assets and ₹2,84,525 crore was liabilities. The bank's net profit in FY25 was ₹2,406 crore.

When asked about the profitability target, Kumar says the bank does not want growth at any cost. "Over the past five years we have targeted only reasonable growth, say in the 12-15% range, and never did any aggressive targets. We always focus in terms of the loan growth, which is not very risky and we think, 12-15% is a reasonable growth which is neither very excessive nor very low," Kumar said.

The CEO said he is very confident of doubling the bank's balance sheet by 2030 because this is about a CAGR of about 15% per annum. "At that level we can double the balance sheet in four-and-a-half years in fact. And so should our bottom-line," he says

When asked what will drive that kind of fast growth, Kumar said there are multiple levers in terms of achieving this kind of profitability and growth, the key being managing the cost of funds. "If you look at the past 18 months, despite the rate of interest going up, and a lot of fight for deposits taking place and where the cost of deposit for everybody has gone up, our cost of deposit has remained intact in the 6-6.10% range," he said.

With SMBC becoming largest shareholder, we expect to benefit from global expertise and high governance standards. This is a powerful endorsement of our transformation journey and future potential

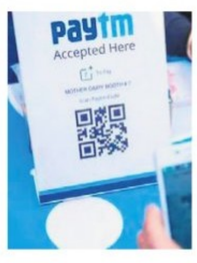
China's Ant Group to sell 4% stake in Paytm; floor price at ₹810/share

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

CHINESE conglomerare Alibaba Group is all set to reduce its shareholding in Paytm parent company - One 97 Communications - on Tuesday.

According to the sources, Alibaba affiliate Ant Group-backed Antfin Netherlands Holding BV will float 2.6 crore shares, which represent around 4% equity, in the open market.



The floor price for each share of the company is kept at ₹809.75, a 6.5% discount to Monday's closing prices. Based on this price, the stake sale at the Paytm's parent company may fetch the Chinese company about ₹2,065 crore, based on the minimum price.

Shares of Paytm closed 4% higher at ₹866.35 on the BSE amid a strong of buying interest seen in the Indian equity market.

Antfin has been reducing its stake in Paytm over the years. According to the shareholding pattern data of the company, it owned 9.85% equity in the Indian fintech company as of March 2025.

In August 2023, Antfin divested a nearly 3.6% stake for ₹2,037 crore.

Investment banking companies - Citigroup and Goldman Sachs - are the merchants for the fresh stake sale.

Last week Paytm reported a loss of ₹540 crore for the quarter ending March 2025, impacted by a charge from employee stock options. Founder and chief executive officer Vijay Shekhar Sharma gave up ESOPs (Employee Stock Ownership Plan) in the reported quarter, triggering a one-time charge of ₹492 crore.

The company expects to become profitable from the first quarter of the current fiscal year.

"We are at the verge of PAT (profit after tax) profitability... I'm very sure that in (the) next quarter onwards, if everything goes as we are seeing, it could very well be a profitable quarter," Sharma said in a post-earnings call.

Xiaomi falls from top 5 spot in India's smartphone market

RAKESH KUMAR @ New Delhi

CHINESE mobile maker Xiaomi has experienced a significant decline in market share, falling out of the top five smartphone sellers in India during the January to March quarter of 2025.

As per data from IDC, Xiaomi ranked sixth in India after witnessing a 42% year-on-year decrease in shipments in the first quarter of 2025. This decline has eroded the company's market share to 7.8%, a notable drop from the 12.8% share it held in the same period last year (Q1 2024). In contrast, its rivals have seen their market share increase. Vivo emerged as the market leader with a 19.7% share in the first quarter, marking a significant 14.6% growth compared to the previous year.

Samsung secured the second position, slightly improving its market share by just under 1%. Oppo captured the third spot with a 12% market share, up from 10.2% in the first quarter of 2024. Another Chinese brand Realme also saw positive growth, increasing its market share by 2.2% to reach 10.6%.

Apple registered the highest growth among the top five, with its market share rising by 23.1% to 9.5% in India. Apple registered the highest YoY growth of 23% among the Top 5 brands, shipping a first-quarter record of three million units in Q1of 2025. The iPhone 16 was the highest shipped model, accounting for 4% of overall India shipments during the quarter.

Xiaomi entered the Indian market in 2014, and it grew significantly due to pocket-friendly and value-for-money devices. Initially, the company mainly focused on the online market. Such was the craze for its devices that they used to sell out in 15 minutes during flash sales.

Smartphone market falls

India's smartphone market shipped 32 mn smartphones in Q1 of 2025, with 5.5% fall YoY, making it the second consecutive quarter of fall in shipments. Weak consumer demand and surplus inventory from the past quarter continue to pose challenges.

PhonePe faces outage due to technical glitch

NEW DELHI: The country's biggest fintech firm PhonePe reported a technical glitch in its system that led to the failure of transactions on its platform. PhonePe co-founder Rahul Chari said that the company at PhonePe has initiated active DR drills, with heightened cybersecurity measures on its network firewall. According to the digital services outage tracker platform Downdetector, the report started coming in at around 6 pm IST and peaked around quarter part seven. UPI system had earlier faced three outages between March 26 to April 12. ENS

NCLAT dismisses PepsiCo insolvency

NEW DELHI: The National Company Law Appellate Tribunal (NCLAT) has dismissed an insolvency plea against PepsiCo India after observing that provisions of IBC can't be turned into a debt-recovery proceeding. The appellate tribunal upheld the earlier order passed by the Chandigarh bench of the NCLT, which had rejected SNJ Synthetics's plea. The NCLAT held SNJ's petition, filed as an operational creditor was not maintainable since principal amount of debt claimed had been repaid and only a disputed claim for interest remained. ENS

JAGGI BROTHERS RESIGN FROM GENSOL AFTER SEBI ORDER

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

GENSOL Engineering promoters — Anmol Singh Jaggi and Puneet Singh Jaggi — have resigned from the company following market regulator Sebi's interim order last month. Anmol held the post of MD while Puneet Singh Jaggi was a whole-time director.

Earlier on April 15, the Sebi barred Jaggi brithers from the securities markets till further orders in a fund diversion and governance lapses case.

The regulator also debarred them from holding the position of a director or key managerial personnel in Gensol until further orders. "Anmol Singh Jaggi, MD and Puneet Singh Jaggi, whole-time director, have tendered their resignation; the reasons are mentioned in their resignation letter. Consequently, they shall cease to be a member of the various committee of the company," said the company in a regulatory filing.

The resignation of founder members comes after the Securities Appellate Tribunal's (SAT's) decision to deny interim relief to the company, which is currently under investigation for alleged fund diversion.

"I am hereby resigning from the post of managing director of Gensol Engineering with effect from the close of business hours on May 12, 2025. I declare that I am resigning due to the direction given under Sebi Interim Order dated April 15, 2025," Anmol Jaggi said in his resignation mail.

It's been 14 years since I first wore the baggy blue in Test cricket. Honestly, I never imagined the journey this format would take me on. It's tested me, shaped me, and taught me lessons I'll carry for life. As I step away from this format, it's not easy — but it feels right. I've given it everything I had, and it's given me back so much more than I could've hoped for — Virat Kohli

Glowing tributes...

SOCIAL MEDIA, UNSURPRISINGLY, WENT ABUZZ SOON AFTER KOHLI'S RETIREMENT NEWS. HERE'S A LOOK...

Congrats to my biscotti @imVkohli on an epic Test career! Your determination & skill have always inspired me. True legend!

AB de Villiers, SA great and Kohli's IPL mate

Your true legacy, Virat, lies in inspiring countless young cricketers to pick up the sport. What an incredible Test career you have had! You have given Indian cricket so much more than just runs - you have given it a new generation of passionate fans and players.

Sachin Tendulkar, India great

In my time playing and broadcasting no individual has done as much for Test cricket as Virat Kohli.

Michael Vaughan, Ex-Eng captain

Virat, we've shared that era... faced the grind together, lived the long days of Test cricket with pride. Your batting in whites is special — not just in numbers, but in intent, intensity, and inspiration. Good luck going forward #ViratKohli #TestCricket @imVkohli

Harbhajan Singh, former India spin ace

Congratulations on a phenomenal Test career, Virat Kohli. As captain, you didn't just win matches—you changed mindsets. You made fitness, aggression, and pride in whites the new standard. A true torchbearer of modern Indian Test cricket. #ThankYouVirat

Lack of Kohli, Sharma a challenge for Sony

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @Chennai

THE upcoming five-match away Test series against England offers Sony Sports, the Indian broadcaster, the rare chance of showcasing live cricket on its channels. However, unlike previous times, it comes with a significant challenge because the squad will be devoid of both Rohit Sharma and Virat Kohli, generational names whose mere presence meant advertisers were more than happy to vie for inventory before and during live broadcasts. As it is, after a long Indian Premier League (IPL) season, advertisers shut down for a period of time as they are conscious of 'ad fatigue' among viewers. So, even if Sony has, in theory, a marquee five-match series against two of the Big Three, the advertising budget for your typical products will not be as much (this problem wasn't there in 2021 as the IPL was cut short because of the pandemic).

When you couple that with the absence of Sharma and Kohli, there's a genuine worry that advertisers may not be forming an orderly queue to fill the space between overs. It's understood that there could be a dent this time and Sony, who retained TV rights for all bilateral cricket in England till 2028, may have a hard time in convincing advertisers. The Board of Control for Cricket in India themselves have had to some forward planning to ensure fans have that connect with the team. Over recent months, Shubman Gill — a captain-elect apart from Rishabh Pant and KL Rahul — has featured prominently in videos put out by the board. One wonders if the board will make at least one of them available for an in-depth interview with Sony to get advertisers on side (at this point, there are no such plans). In 2021, a depleted Indian side, sans Kohli and Sharma in various stages, did the unthinkable in Australia. What they did enabled Sony to come out with widespread highlights packages, talk shows as well as a documentary.

Virat's arrival into Indian cricket, especially their Test team, changed the contours of what was possible

A LEGACY BEYOND TEST & TIME

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @Chennai

IN hindsight, when Virat Kohli wore his beloved Test whites for the first time, a June morning many moons ago in West Indies, it set in stone a beginning of a new era as well as the beginning of the end of one. Rahul Dravid and VVS Laxman were about to retire, an aging Sachin Tendulkar was on a break and Kohli, by sheer force of will and a testament to unflinching ethos even back then, had become an all-format player.

Over the next two years, India's modern batting greats retired. One by one. Laxman. Dravid. Virender Sehwag Tendulkar. An endless conveyor belt of batting talent meant able replacements were ready. Plug and play.

But Kohli wasn't just any plug and play. He changed the goalposts. His arrival into Indian cricket, especially their Test team, changed the contours of what was possible. He did so in multiple ways. His batting spoke for itself, his captaincy set a new benchmark and the way he read the game lit the blue touchpaper in ways Indians weren't accustomed to.

He was unapologetic, his intensity rubbed of on his teammates as well as the paying public and he bent many a Test through sheer character and tenacity. If his captaincy took India to new heights -- it's not a surprise he's their winningest captain in the five-day format -- his approach with the bat won him his first admirers.

Going purely by Test cricket's age-old batting metric -- an average of over 50 over a number of seasons in myriad conditions -- he under-punched. But that's missing the tree for the woods. For the vast majority of 123 Tests, 210 innings, 9230 runs, 30 100s and 31 50s, he was sui generis. Sure, you would likely pay more to watch Sachin Tendulkar, ask Rahul Dravid to pad up first if your life depended on it or give Sunil Gavaskar a ring first if you wanted a cricketer to give a lecture on the art of batting.

But when Kohli strode out to bat, the experience was more visceral, a lot of theatre. His energy was so rare it transmitted across crowds up and down the ever-shrinking five-day space in multiple continents. From Wanderers to Wankhede and Birmingham to Brisbane, he put bums on seats.

It's no surprise, then, that Kohli's final red-ball match in the country -- a Ranji Trophy encounter in New Delhi against Railways -- saw more than 12,000 move through the turnstiles on a weekday. Never mind the fact that there was one telling weakness -- flirting with a nibbling ball outside off stump (his first and last dismissals in Tests were outside edges off deliveries past the fourth stump line). The meat in the sandwich, though, woof.

For over a decade, Kohli kept chiselling away to become the best batter that he could be. If Tendulkar was pre-ordained for greatness, Kohli's path to mastery of batsmanship was via hard work and recognising the modern demands of an athlete. In a fire-side chat with presenter Isa Guha in March, the former India captain had said: "There was a realisation that I needed to change the way I'm preparing as an athlete. The next day onwards, I changed everything about my diet and training. The motivation was something that came from within. No one had to force me. If I'm starting off physically underprepared or lesser than the opposition, then how am I be giving myself a chance to succeed?"

If his batting was forged in this ideal of having to suffer to become a great, he adopted this same ideal when he was appointed captain of the Indian Test team. "Eventually you look at what happened after I became captain and we started to bring in this kind of culture into the team as well," he said in the same chat. "It became a fabric that went into the culture of Indian cricket. That was a great lesson for me as well. If the vision is larger and the intent is for the greater good of everyone around you. Then you can still lead it."

Even if Kohli the batter can still be compared to Tendulkar, Gavaskar and Dravid -- the only three Indian batting greats to have scored over 10000 in Tests -- what made Kohli's Test career genuinely Everestian was his approach to captaincy and leadership.

It's also what helped India become a great Test playing nation. In 2015, four years before the World Test Championship (WTC) came about, he set the dice rolling on challenging wickets at home. "I don't mind compromising on (batsmen's) averages as long as we are winning Test matches," he had said after a game against South Africa. "I think that's our main concern, we are not playing for records... if you don't take 20 wickets, you can have an average of 55, it doesn't matter." Just like in 2011, Kohli's exit from the scene will herald not just the beginning of a new era but the beginning of the end of one.

Virat, the pied piper of modern Indian cricket

GOMESH S @Chennai

DURING the second day of the fifth Test between India and Australia in Sydney earlier this year, when Jasprit Bumrah (the stand-in captain) had walked off the field, Virat Kohli took charge. Even before that moment, he was actively playing a role. Sydney, however, was different. Kohli was the stand-in captain with Bumrah not taking part in the rest of the game. And for a little over 24 hours, it seemed like time had travelled backwards. Kohli was doing what he had done best, leading India in Test cricket.

All cameras were on him. Not a moment was missed, not a gesture was unnoticed. He would be standing in the slips, reacting to every ball, celebrating every wicket like it was his, frustrated after every play and miss like it was life or death. While doing all this, he also made every fan, Indian or otherwise, feel what he felt, go through the emotions he went through. The Indian contingent was egged on while words and gestures were exchanged with the Australians. Kohli even imitated Cameron Bancroft moment from 2018 to show he got no sandpaper in his pockets. It is the relationship he has always had with fans, especially in Australia from the time he showed the finger.

That is how Kohli always has been. From that Australia tour in 2011, every single time he took the field in a Test match, Kohli engaged with the crowd like no one else. For an average fan who is there for the sheer emotion of supporting their team, Kohli was the poster boy who brought them to the stands in Tests. Between 2015 and 2021, when he was captaining the Indian team, Kohli kept the fans invested in Test cricket. If the cricketing field was the theatre of drama, the former Indian captain was the conductor who had the pulse of the people. He made them sing to his tunes.

In every sense, Kohli was the pied piper of Indian cricket. Fans reacted, responded and followed to everything he did on the field. And it had a ripple effect when India travelled as well. Through his last tour, the Australian media expected Kohli to react the way he had in the past and it came in Melbourne when he shoulder-barged debutant Sam Konstas. They knew what everyone else was very much aware of. No one made Test cricket into a theatrical spectacle like Kohli did. And Kohli did what he did because it had an impact on the team as well. There are innumerable number of occasions where he had gotten the crowd involved and their cheer had a part shifting the mood and the momentum of the game. Bangalore 2017. New Delhi 2015. Mumbai 2016. The entire 2021 tour of England... it goes on.

He might not have had an on-field farewell, but it was perhaps fitting that Kohli's final first-class game — his first Ranji match after 13 years — at the Arun Jaitley Stadium between Delhi and Railways showed what it meant for the fans to watch their hero in the flesh.

More than 15,000 fans — perhaps for the first time since Tendulkar's last Ranji game in Lahli — thronged the stadium, braving an almost stampede like situation before eventually getting a glimpse of their king in his kingdom. They came, they watched, chanted his name for about two and a half days and celebrated the guy who gave them memories for life.

For Kohli is indeed the last of the stars. He is the pied piper of Indian cricket.

TRIP DOWN THE LANE

A look at some of the highlights of Kohli's Test career that spanned over 14 years...

- Kohli didn't start his Test career in a spectacular fashion but 1721 runs from the first 24 Tests at 46.51 was pretty good.
- He made his first century (116) in Adelaide in 2012. He was the highest scorer for India on the tour where legends like Sachin Tendulkar, Rahul Dravid, VVS Laxman and Virender Sehwag struggled.
- Kohli's best years in Tests started with the Australia tour in 2014-15. During the tour, he scored 692 runs at 86.50, including four hundreds. He also took over as a captain during the series.
- From then till the end of the Bangladesh tour of India in 2019-20, he amassed 5347 runs at an average of 63.65. In this period, he hit 21 hundreds from just 90 innings.
- He scored his first double-hundred in Tests against West Indies in July 2016. By the end of 2017, he added five more to it in his next 33 innings. It was the second-most prolific run of 34 Test innings in terms of double-hundreds after Don Bradman's. In all, he scored seven double hundreds, most by a captain in Test cricket history.
- In 2018, he made a return to England where he failed four years ago. India might have lost the series but Kohli emerged as the leading scorer with 593 runs at 59.30 with two hundreds and three fifties.
- In 2018, Kohli scored a century each at Centurion in South Africa, Edgbaston in England and Perth in Australia. India also won the Border-Gavaskar Trophy in the 2018-19 to create history under Kohli's captaincy. It was India's first Test series win Down Under.
- While he is more remembered for his exploits in Australia, Kohli is also among the most prolific visiting batters in Tests in South Africa since its readmission. He scored 891 runs across four series at an average of 49.50 in the country.
- It was Kohli who is credited for building a pace attack that could win challenging assignments away from home. Spinners had always been considered match winners for India but under Kohli, fast bowlers took 591 wickets at an average of 26 and strike rate of 51.84.

IPL 2025 resumes on May 17, final on June 3

ENS @Chennai

THE BCCI on Monday announced the resumption of IPL 2025 with the tournament starting with Royal Challengers Bengaluru's clash against Kolkata Knight Riders in Bengaluru on May 17. A total of 17 matches will be played across six venues. Qualifier 1 and Eliminator are scheduled on May 29 and 30 respectively while Qualifier 2 will be held on June 1. The final is scheduled on June 3. The revised schedule includes two double-headers, which will be played on two Sundays.

"After extensive consultations with government and security agencies, and with all the key stakeholders, the Board has decided to proceed with the remainder of the season," read a statement issued by the BCCI. With Hyderabad, Kolkata and Chennai not hosting any of the rescheduled remaining group stage matches, they may be front-runners for the play-offs and final (venues will be decided at later dates).

LEAGUE GAMES

May 17: RCB vs KKR, Bengaluru, May 18: RR vs PBKs, Jaipur; DC vs GT, New Delhi, May 19: LSG vs SRH, Lucknow; May 20: CSK vs RR, New Delhi; May 21: MI vs DC, Mumbai; May 22: GT vs LSG, Ahmedabad, May 23: RCB vs SRH, Bengaluru, May 24: PBKS vs DC, Jaipur, May 25: GT vs CSK, Ahmedabad; SRH vs KKR, Delhi, May 26: PBKs vs MI, Jaipur; May 27: LSG vs RCB, Lucknow.

Foreign stars may leave early

With the league extended to almost 10 days, the resumption of the international window will put overseas players in a tricky spot. As the World Test Championship final slated to begin from June 7, South Africa and Australia players are unlikely to feature at least in play-offs. While the latter may have a camp in England before the WTC final, the Proteas are reportedly set to play Zimbabwe in a tune-up match.

West Indies' white-ball tour of England (three ODIs and as many as T20Is) is slated to begin on May 29. The likes of Sherfane Rutherford and Romario Shepherd, named in the squad, may not be available. With Harry Brook elevated as leader as England's ODI captain, he may want to set an early marker so the likes of Jos Buttler and Jacob Bethell among others may skip the remaining games.

What happens to India A games

THE proposed India A tour of England was scheduled to begin around May 30. That may now be revisited as the league has been pushed back thus robbing the likes of Sai Sudharsan, Karun Nair, Abhimanyu Easwaran and Prasidh Krishna — players who had chances of featuring in the main XI if they had good performances in the shadow tour — of quality time in England before the five-Test series.

Pujara recalls 'calm' times with Kohli

ASHOK VENUGOPAL @Chennai

WHEN Virat Kohli announced his retirement from Test cricket on Monday, though expected, there was a tinge of surprise. Despite murmurs in the last couple of days, his former Test teammate Cheteshwar Pujara seemed bewildered by such a sudden decision.

"No one expected him (Kohli) to announce his retirement," he said. "Kohli is someone who has contributed immensely to Indian cricket, not just in Test format but across all formats. He is someone who has inspired many young cricketers to play a lot and give importance to Test cricket. So he has been an inspiration to many players and he is someone who will definitely be missed in the team. He is one of the best players in this era without any doubt," Pujara told this daily. "His achievements are immense. It is something which one can just dream about. He has won the ODI World Cup, has been part of the Champions Trophy winning team and when we speak about the Test format, that is something where he has scored more than 9000 runs and performed in different conditions," he added.

Pujara has been fortunate to watch many of Kohli's great innings from close quarters. "He has played many great knocks. Each of his centuries was a delight to watch. But for me, his 100 against Australia in 2018 in the second Test match at Perth stands out and is one of my favourite innings." he said. "Kohli has been a great leader. He is someone who has led from the front. He is someone under whose leadership the team started winning Test matches overseas. So the credit should definitely go to him as a leader and also the kind of fitness levels he brought into the team. He was instrumental in making that (fitness levels) change," said Pujara.

"Off the field, he is calm and composed. On the field, yes, he is aggressive, but off the field when you chat with him, he is very calm and very composed. He is also someone who is very light-hearted, likes cracking jokes, laughing whenever it is possible. So, he was a delight to play with," revealed Pujara.

Indian studies on PCOS have revealed a prevalence rate of 9-22%, especially among metropolitan women, which is regarded as one of the highest rates worldwide. A 2021 ICMR-funded study revealed a rising frequency among adolescents

Symptoms

- Irregular or absent periods
- Excess facial/body hair (hirsutism)
- Acne and oily skin
- Weight gain or difficulty losing weight
- Thinning scalp hair
- Dark patches on the skin (acanthosis nigricans)
- Mood swings or depression
- Difficulty in conceiving

Treatment

PCOS has no cure, but symptoms can be managed with:

- Lifestyle changes (diet and exercise)
- Hormonal birth control for regulating periods
- Metformin to address insulin resistance
- Fertility treatments like ovulation induction for those trying to conceive
- Anti-androgen medications for hirsutism or acne
- Psychological support or counselling for mental health issues
- Medications for specific symptoms

Surgical options

Ovarian drilling, a surgical procedure to reduce androgen production, is rarely used today and is typically considered only when other fertility treatments have been unsuccessful

Prevention

Though not entirely preventable, the risk and severity can be reduced by

- Maintaining a healthy weight
- Eating a balanced diet rich in whole grains, lean protein, and low in sugar
- Regular physical activity
- Managing stress & getting enough sleep
- Regular health checkup to detect early symptoms

PCOS NOT A TABOO: DON'T DELAY OR HESITATE TO SEEK TREATMENT

KAVITA BAJELI-DATT @ New Delhi

DOES consuming caffeine help in managing polycystic ovary syndrome (PCOS), one of the most common causes of female infertility? It may, as the latest study published in the Nature Journal suggests that caffeine can effectively improve the symptoms of PCOS – which is seeing a sharp rise in India. The researchers who conducted tests on animals confirmed the efficacy of caffeine in treating obese PCOS rats.

According to Dr Manjula Anagani, clinical director, Women and Child Institute, CARE Hospitals, Banjara Hills, Hyderabad, the study is not without value. "Caffeine in moderation could improve PCOS management by improving insulin sensitivity and supporting metabolism, therefore benefiting obese patients," said the Padma Shri awardee.

Dr Deepti Sharma, HOD of obstetrics and gynaecology, Amrita Hospital, Faridabad, also described the findings as promising. "Caffeine enhances lipid metabolism and reduces inflammation, which may benefit insulin-resistant PCOS patients." The Nature study said that the risk of PCOS increases with increasing body mass index (BMI), and weight loss is considered an important treatment to improve symptoms in PCOS patients. The study cited studies that higher coffee consumption is associated with a lower risk of polycystic ovary syndrome and may help reduce the risk of metabolic syndrome and type-2 diabetes. Both the experts, however, said balanced consumption and more human trials are needed to confirm the safety, optimal intake, and long-term efficacy of caffeine intake in managing PCOS, which is a common hormonal condition that affects women of reproductive age and usually starts during adolescence. "Unregulated caffeine intake can have side effects like anxiety or insomnia, so clinical guidance is essential," stressed Dr Taruna Dua, senior consultant and unit head, obstetrics and gynaecology, Aakash Healthcare, Dwarka, New Delhi.

Rise in cases

Highlighting that PCOS prevalence among Indian women is relatively high compared to other countries, Dr Dua said it ranges from 9-36%, depending on diagnostic criteria and region. "India is witnessing a rise in PCOS due to increasing urbanisation, sedentary behaviour, unhealthy diets, obesity, stress, and hormonal imbalances caused by erratic sleep cycles and environmental factors. Early onset of puberty and delayed childbearing may also play a role," she added.

Indian studies, especially among metropolitan women, have revealed a prevalence rate of 9-22%, which is regarded as one of the highest rates worldwide. A 2021 Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR)-funded study revealed a rising frequency among young adolescents.

A tabooed disorder

Sadly, in India, PCOS is a taboo disorder, and thus gets less attention and leads to late detection. "Indeed, in many parts of India, women's menstrual health is a taboo topic. Usually kept private, conversations about menstruation and infertility discourage many women from getting treatment. We should aggressively encourage awareness and an open-minded mindset," said Dr Anagani.

"This is especially due to its link with fertility and physical appearance (acne, facial hair). Women often hesitate to talk about their symptoms, leading to delayed diagnosis and treatment," added Dr Dua. As a woman facing difficulties in conceiving may experience social pressure and judgment, the underlying PCOS might not be openly addressed, added Dr Anshumala Shukla-Kulkarni, head of minimally invasive gynaecology, gynaecology laparoscopic and robotic surgery at Kokilaben Dhirubhai Ambani Hospital, Mumbai.

According to Dr J Krithika Devi, senior fertility expert, Nova IVF Fertility, Chennai, is seeing a surge in PCOS, and one of the main reasons is menstrual and reproductive health remains stigmatised. "This results in many girls and women hesitating to seek help and suffer from fertility issues."

Highlighting that one in five women in India suffer from PCOS, Dr Devi also pointed to consumption of processed foods as one of the reasons for the rise in PCOS. Of course, genetics plays a significant role.

Treatment

There is no cure for PCOS, but it can be effectively managed to alleviate symptoms and reduce the risk of long-term complications. Dr Shukla-Kulkarni said lifestyle modification is the first and mainstay of treatment followed by dietary changes, regular exercise, and stress management.

She stressed the need to avoid a sedentary lifestyle, saying that those affected with the disorder should exercise every day for an hour, avoid processed food, and eat lots of fresh fruits and vegetables.

The Mumbai-based doctor also suggested avoiding foods with high glycemic index and changing to millet instead of rice. "Even 5-10 % weight loss can restore ovulation and reduce insulin resistance," she said.

"It's important for women with PCOS to work with healthcare professionals to develop a personalised weight loss plan that takes into account their individual needs and health status," she added.

For women with a family history of PCOS, maintaining a healthy weight and lifestyle from a young age might be particularly beneficial in potentially delaying or mitigating the onset and severity of symptoms, added Dr Shukla-Kulkarni.

Busting the myth of whether women who suffer from PCOS can conceive naturally, Dr Devi said they can if they regulate their cycle with regular exercise and diet. "They can try to conceive naturally. If cycles have become regular and you have been trying naturally for a year and still not able to conceive, then you need help from a gynaecologist."

Stating that the treatment of PCOS is as much a psychological journey as it is a hormonal one, Dr Sharma cited an example of one of her 20-year-old patients. The college student came to her with complaints of irregular menstrual cycles, recent weight gain, and facial hair and acanthosis nigricans - a blackish discoloration at the nape of the neck, pointing to insulin resistance. But what caught the doctor's attention was when she said she couldn't sing now as her voice had changed.

"The emotional toll of her symptoms was undeniable. She had also started anti-anxiety medication, prescribed elsewhere, to cope with the distress," Dr Sharma said.

After intensive lifestyle counselling, simple dietary changes, gradual physical activity, and a combination of hormonal pills, the 20-year-old lost weight, her facial hair reduced, the menstrual cycles normalised, and the timber of her voice softened. "For every young woman struggling with her body and identity, timely care, emotional support, and small clinical victories can change the narrative - from silence to song," she said. Dr Anagani also stressed on awareness. "Timely recognition of symptoms could help early intervention. Holistic care matters. A balanced diet, exercise, and mental wellness go hand-in-hand with medication. A compassionate doctor-patient relationship can be life-changing," she said and added that each PCOS journey is unique, and treatment plans must be personalised.

WHAT IS PCOS?

PCOS is a hormonal imbalance that occurs when the ovaries - the organ that produces and releases eggs - create excess hormones. If you have PCOS, your ovaries produce unusually high levels of hormones called androgens, and this causes reproductive hormones to become imbalanced. This often results in irregular menstrual cycles, missed periods, unpredictable ovulation, an excess of androgen (male hormone), excess hair growth or hair loss, acne, weight gain or difficulty losing weight, darkening of the skin, skin tags, polycystic ovaries, miscarriages and infertility. Also, people with PCOS may be at higher risk of certain health conditions, like diabetes, high blood pressure, high cholesterol, anxiety, depression, endometrial cancer, as well as other conditions.

DAY'S DIARY

Major win

On this day in 2012, Manchester City won the English title for the first time in 44 years, surging past Queens Park Rangers 3-2

ABOUT THE CLUB

The club's trajectory changed dramatically in September 2008 when the Abu Dhabi United Group, led by Sheikh Mansour, purchased Manchester City

THE MEMBERS

The club began assembling a star-studded squad, signing world-class players such as Yaya Touré, David Silva, Carlos Tevez, and eventually Sergio Agüero

LEGACY OF VICTORY

It marked the arrival of a new powerhouse, signalling the end of Manchester United's unchecked dominance and the beginning of a new era

Virat Kohli, known widely as King Kohli, has left the cricketing world reeling after his announcement to retire from test cricket, on Monday | Anubhab Roy

ONE CROWN DOWN

SYED KIRMANI, FORMER INDIA WICKET KEEPER AND 1983 WORLD CUP WINNER

I felt that there was sufficient cricket left with Virat Kohli, and this is a decision taken by an individual on his own accord. There is so much cricket in the three formats, resulting in a tremendous amount of wear and tear in one's system. I suppose he's feeling very tired and he has got a lot of other responsibilities on hand to take care of. One cannot be playing all the time and it may also be a case of 'when will he retire, when will he give a chance to the youngsters'. This has happened many times with cricketers who had enough cricket left in them. Undoubtedly, he has been a great inspiration to the youngsters of today, and you can rest assured knowing there is an abundance of talent in our country. I wish him well for the formats which he is aiming to play, like the ODIs and the IPL. Maybe his focus is on winning RCB an IPL title this year. Obviously RCB have been in great form and it all depends on him.

DEVAPRANA GHOSH, STUDENT

I was making myself ready for this because I knew it was coming soon. This morning, when I saw Virat's Instagram post, I was rather happy as I believe that he has had a successful and memorable test career, so it's better to move away while he's already in the limelight rather than being pushed away by the management eventually. Rohit Sharma's decision might have influenced him, maybe? This decision might help him to focus solely on the upcoming 2027 ODI Cricket World Cup.

IRFAN SAIT, DIRECTOR, KARNATAKA INSTITUTE OF CRICKET

Dejected that the king is calling it a day! I would have loved to see him play in England and walk out in glory. I'm sure he will miss the game as much as we will miss his presence. India will continue to play some very good cricket but the Virat factor, which was so special, will be missing. He should have emulated Sachin and so many other greats, who have given fair chances to their fans to enjoy watching them one last time. We need to see him play one more test series please.

THIS HAS BEEN A TOUGH WEEK FOR CRICKET FANS. IF THE GENERAL, PREVAILING ANXIETY AROUND THE LOOMING PROSPECT OF ESCALATION IN THE INDO-PAK STANDOFF WASN'T ENOUGH, SOURCES OF DISTRACTION – ARTS AND SPORTS, FOR INSTANCE – ARE RUNNING ON SHORT SUPPLY, INCLUDING THE RECENTLY-ANNOUNCED HIATUS OF THE IPL. IT SEEMS, HOWEVER, THAT FANS OF RCB HAVE IT A TAD BIT WORSE. THEY HAVE BEEN RECENTLY HIT WITH ANOTHER DEVASTATING NEWS: VIRAT KOHLI – THE WORKHORSE AND LOYAL TALISMAN OF THE TEAM – HAS JUST ANNOUNCED HIS RETIREMENT FROM TEST CRICKET. CRICKET INSIDERS AND FANS REACT

VISHWA JOSHI, TREASURY MANAGER

My initial reaction was more of disappointment than sadness – mainly because, ever since Kohli burst onto the scene, he has gone through multiple rough patches and always fought his way back. Whether it was the 2011-12 Australia tour, the 2014-15 Australia tour, or the 2018 England tour, every time his place was questioned, he responded with resilience. Maybe the selfish fan in me was hoping for the same this time as well. Even if I take off the hat of being an ardent Kohli supporter for a moment and think objectively, the decision still doesn't quite make sense to me. Yes, he has struggled a bit in recent years in the whites, but even during this lull, he managed to produce some gritty knocks from time to time. Given his exceptional fitness and mental toughness, I sincerely believe he had one more peak left in test cricket.

ARUNIMA THAKUR, EMULATION INTERN

This news makes me a little emotional. Virat ruled test ricket and it was an absolute pleasure watching the Indian (men's) test team under his captaincy, especially playing against Australia, where Virat would give it back to the infamous sledgers. Will miss him on the test ground.

FROM THE (WORK) HORSE'S MOUTH

Virat Kohli left fans in a bittersweet stupor with a touching Instagram post confirming his retirement from test cricket. He underscores the 14 long years he has cherished representing India, since the first time he donned the 'baggy' robes of the format. He also highlights the particular aspects of the format which stood out to him, calling it a 'deeply personal' experience, filled with 'the small moments that no one sees but that stay with you forever'.

Once again, Neytt sparkled at the Met Gala with their carpet. CE takes a look at the brand and its sustainable initiatives

MAHIMA ANNA JACOB

ROLLING OUT THE BLUE CARPET

ANOTHER edition of the Met Gala swept through New York with its usual swirl of stardust – celebrities shimmering under the flash of cameras, daring outfits turning heads, all for a museum: the New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art. Yet, amid the spectacle, this year's most unexpected showstopper wasn't any of the guests. For the little state of Kerala, and the Malayalis across the world, the proudest moment was for a weaving label from Cherthala.

From halfway across the world, Neytt by Extraweave took centrestage by laying down the very carpet that welcomed the stars. Founded by Sivan Santhosh and his wife Nimisha Srinivas, this was Neytt's third Met Gala moment. The weaving house made its debut appearance at the Met in 2022 with a red-and-blue striped carpet for the theme 'In America: An Anthology of Fashion'. In 2023, they mesmerised the world with a swirly red-and-blue print on an off-white sisal weave, made in collaboration with Japanese architect Tadao Ando for the Karl Lagerfeld tribute.

"The maiden order came through a long-term customer (a Kentucky-based company) of Extraweave. At first, we didn't know it was for the Met Gala. All we knew was that it was for a big fashion event. We were happy and proud to see our rug and the efforts of the local artist of Cherthala being featured on such a global platform. It was indeed a priceless moment," says Santhosh.

Though the makers didn't know the entire picture, the meticulous production process wasn't compromised. "The first one was a learning process for us. We made several prototypes to decide the right material and plan the finer details. When the celebrities walk, the weave should be in such a way that they don't trip," he smiles.

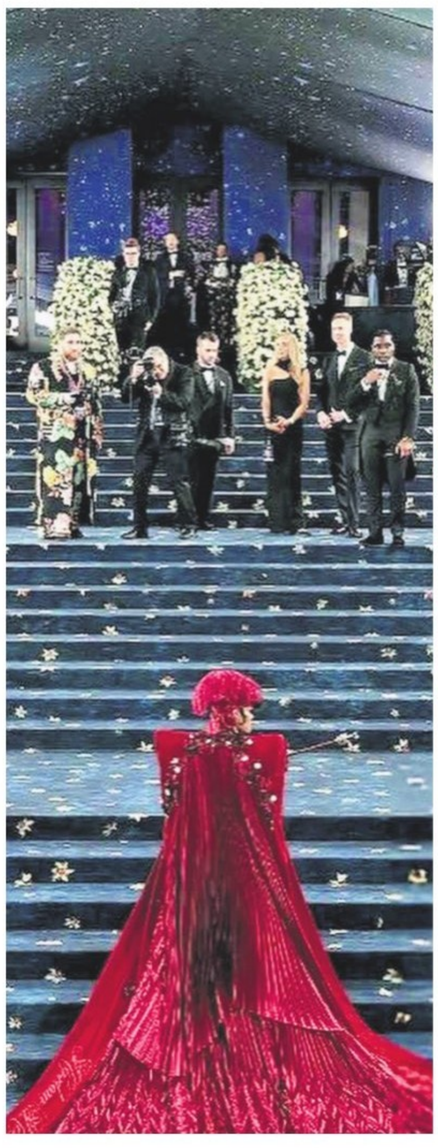
Each year, Neytt levels up the quality. "We ensure that it comes with a certain finesse," says Santhosh, whose grandfather began making coir doormats in 1917, under the name Travancore Mats and Matting company. For this Met Gala, the carpet was woven from 6,840 square metres of natural sisal fibre extracted from agave cacti sourced from Madagascar. 500 artisans from Alappuzha worked 90 days to complete it. "The fibre is hand-sorted to ensure quality. And then, the process begins – spinning them into yarn, refining it even finer, winding them onto bobbins, loading them onto the loom, and then weaving into a carpet. For this project, we created 57 individual rolls, each measuring 4 by 30 feet," he explains.

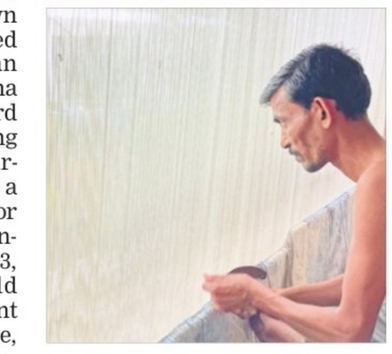
This year, the blank canvas was transformed by artist Cy Gavin, who painted it midnight blue and dotted it with white-and-yellow narcissus flowers. The final look of the carpet echoed the theme of the Costume Institute exhibit 'Superfine: Tailoring Black Style'.

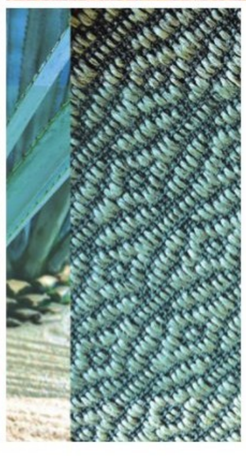
In 2021, Santhosh began Neytt by Extraweave with the vision of pinning Alappuzha and Cherthala on the world map of carpets. "Rug making is always connected to places like Baduhi, Mirzapur, Panipat. So the vision was to showcase the rug-making expertise of Alappuzha. Our district is an expert at weaving. When my grandfather started his company, there were many similar firms in the area. But almost all have disappeared now," he says. Alongside, Nyett also aims to popularise the traditional Kerala elements and highlight the South Indian weaving culture. "While incorporating these traditional elements, we also engage the experts in that field. For the Vallamkali designs, we sat with the oarsmen to get the details right. This makes the process inclusive and the product becomes more relatable," adds Santhosh.

Neytt's focus is on products such as rugs, carpets, wall covering and woven artworks. And according to the founders, it ensures the weaving community working with the organisation get continued support, especially the women weavers. "About 99 per cent of our workforce is local employees, and around 40 per cent is women. They're involved in every stage of production. But it's in the mending process where their precision truly shines. A part of the carpet-making is machine-led, but machines can make mistakes – missed yarns, uneven knots, or loose ends. These are meticulously corrected by hand. That level of detail requires skill and patience, and it's only the women who can handle it," he says. What makes Neytt stand out is how it approaches the sustainable model through innovation. In addition to sisal fibre, Neytt uses recycled PET bottles, bamboo, water hyacinth, and hemp. "All of these bring a difference in textures as well," the founder explains. Collaborating with the fishing community of Vypeen, Neytt also has plans to launch products made out of discarded fishing nets. "This is to make use of waste and provide a livelihood for the community. The project is part of a World Wide Fund for Nature initiative titled 'Waves to Weaves'," he adds.

Events like the Met Gala, he says, serve as powerful moments of recognition for the artisans. "For them, it's a source of pride to know that before the celebrities walked the carpet, they were the ones who created it. It's surreal: the stars we admire walked on something made by our hands. Maybe one day, we would get to walk on it too. That would be amazing," he laughs.







It's a source of pride for the weavers to know that before the celebrities walked the carpet, they were the ones who created it. It's surreal... Maybe one day, we would get to walk on it too — Sivan Santhosh, founder, Neytt

FITBIT

SETUBANDHA SARVANGASANA SACRUM BLOCK (BRIDGE POSE SACRUM BLOCK)

This is a variation of the basic yoga pose – Setubandha Sarvangasana (Bridge Pose). This supported pose is easy on the back and shoulders. The support at the sacrum is similar to using a bolster, but the impact on the back and chest is minimal. This is not an inversion pose, but it can be practised by students who have heart-related issues. Seniors can benefit from this.

STEPS

- Start in Constructive Rest Pose, feet a few inches away from each other.
- Now, place the palms facing down with the arms close to your body. Ensure the back and shoulders are grounded, and chin lowered towards the chest.
- Inhale, lift your hips up as you take the support of the hands and feet pushing the floor. Place the block (flat with the longer side facing up) below your buttocks. Half of the block supports the lower back and the other half the upper buttocks.
- Gently lower the hips and place the body on the block. If there is discomfort, adjust the block, placing it exactly under the space between the lower back and buttocks.
- Stay connected to your breath, and relax the shoulders and hips. Surrender into the pose slowly and connect to how the lower back feels, psoas muscles stretch, and chest expands with each inhalation. Keep the chin down, and close your eyes. Stay here for about 6-8 breaths.
- Gradually increase the duration of stay up to 8-12 breaths, or more.
- Slowly, release, remove the block, and bring the hips back to the floor. Stay for a few breaths, relax in Savasana.

BENEFITS

- Stretches and lengthens the abdominal muscles.
- Slowly brings strength and stability in the hips.
- Opens up the chest slightly, creating space for the rib cage.
- Supports the cardiovascular and respiratory systems.
- Students with Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (COPD) benefit with deep breath awareness, providing more oxygen into the bloodstream.
- Gentle hip and heart opener when done with awareness.
- Stimulates the energy flow gently moving upwards from the base of the spine.
- Keeps the spinal nerves active.
- Heals lower back pain, stiffness, or tightness.
- Releases stored emotions with the gentle stretch, relaxing, and energising the body.
- Helps to slowly accelerate the energy flow upwards.
- Makes room for fresh flow of energy (prana), stimulating the chakras.
- Balances chakras', controls and brings a stable body and mind.
- Improves blood circulation as the oxygen levels in the blood increases.
- Calms nervous system, stimulating the reproductive system.
- Increases the efficiency of the respiratory system.
- A soothing and relaxing practice that can be included as part of cooling down, at the end of a yoga sequence.
- As a therapy, you can practise to address a few physical conditions like back pain, low immunity.
- It can address symptoms related to leukemia, diastasis recti, and many more.

LIMITATIONS

- Students with back/spine injuries, herniated disc; those recovering from surgeries should avoid this pose.
- Pregnant women can do it with precaution under the guidance of a yoga expert.
- Those with severe back pain-related issues, hampering their mobility should practise it on the bed.
- People recovering from a hip replacement surgery can practise it on the bed with precautions. Seniors can use blankets instead of blocks.

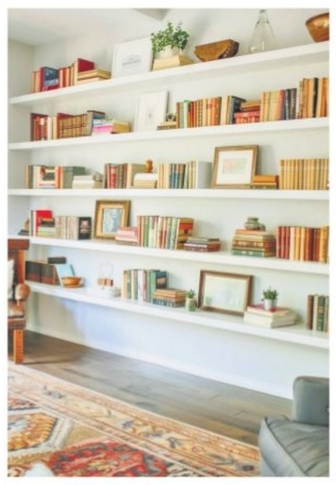
Spaces

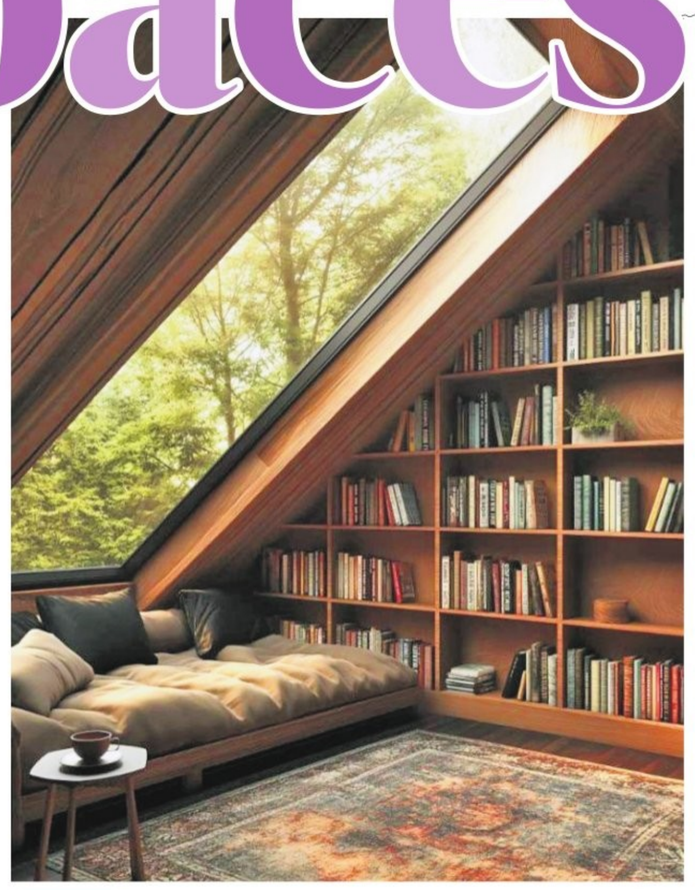
HOME libraries usually come across as a space you cannot afford, but it does not have to be so. It does not have to be a spare bedroom or an additional space altogether, it can be any quiet corner, walk-up attic space, or even the space available below the staircase. Neither does your library need to have expensive additions. You can create a perfectly aesthetic and functional, inexpensive library by using already owned furniture and storage shelves, or by buying them off the shelf if not from a thrift sale. There are a few important aspects of designing a home library.



DESIGN STORY

Neeta Jessani
A designer and lover of textures making functional spaces aesthetic

MAKE YOUR OWN READING HUB



SPACE

Your library need not necessarily be a humongous space or room. If corners and the triangular spaces under the staircase are put to use well, they would house an aesthetic library too. While selecting a space for your fine prints, make sure to check for natural lighting or enough provisions to house lamps. The further it is located away from the high-traffic areas of the house, the better purpose it will serve.

STORAGE

The core of these libraries is the bookcases. While your dream library might have built-in bookshelves with glass shutters, they are quite expensive to make and would be possible only if there is ample space available. Generally, libraries having floor-to-ceiling storage not just make the space aesthetic but also add a lot more storage for your books than going for something with a lower height. However, if your space does not allow for this, vintage bookshelves with glass shutters, wooden racks, and storage units always add the needed warmth to this space. Explore options from full-height storage to wall shelves, depending on the availability of space and resources, while also keeping in mind the number of books you need to house. Use materials wisely to add warmth to these spaces, even if they are small in size.

LIGHTING AND DECOR

Lighting can make or break any experience. Choose a space with natural light for your home libraries. If that is not an option, make sure to layer your lighting with artificial light. Lights inside the cabinets make browsing for books hassle-free, while a floor or table lamp at every reading seat makes sure the light reaches the pages, making the reading practice flawless. Add task lights if you use this space as a provisional work area too. While adding decor, make sure to keep it personal yet simple. For art to lamps, choose something that resonates with you and your design style for the space.

SEATING

The library is where you will be spending hours reading, hence, seating is as important as storage. If you live alone or are creating this space as a private retreat, opt for a cushioned chair. If you like curling up your feet, go in for a sofa combined with an ottoman to rest your feet. If you can only focus on reading if your back is not hurting and you are well-positioned, floor seating is also a great way to enjoy a book – cuddled up with a throw blanket and a beverage.

In a digitised world, the charm that rows of books hold, still remains timeless. Whether you appreciate the ambiance of books or are an avid book lover, the sanctuary of calm and knowledge that a library brings, remains unmatched. Get designing and reading!

Direction will be my forte going forward: Krishna Ajai Rao

The Yuddhakaanda actor and producer, who had the urge to direct for a while, is currently involved in writing the script for his debut directorial

CE FEATURES

Yuddhakaanda Chapter 2, which was released on April 18, is still holding its ground in theatres and registering a few houseful shows. Instead of just basking in this film's glory, actor and producer Krishna Ajai Rao is already turning the page to the next chapter. "The film is running with single shows, and the response from those who've watched it has been heartening," he says. Written by Pavan Bhat and Ajai Rao, with the latter playing the role of a lawyer in Yuddhakaanda, the film also features Archana Jois, Prakash Belawadi, and others in pivotal roles.

Talking about plans of making Yuddhakaanda into a franchise, Ajai says, "There's no such plan—unless something organically evolves from the story. It has to come from the writer, not intention alone."

Ajai, who shouldered the production responsibilities for the film, has now set his sights firmly on direction. "Direction will be my forte going forward," he reveals. "I started writing my next even while I was working on my other projects. Officially, my next outing will mark my directorial debut — and I'll be acting in it too."

However, he has no plans to take on production this time. "Handling production, acting, and direction simultaneously is too hectic. Right now, my hands are full with just direction — and that's where my energy is going."

Revealing that the passion to direct has always been there, and it is not a spur-of-the-moment decision, Ajai says, "Although I've had the urge to direct for a while, the scale I had envisioned earlier wasn't feasible. Now, the goal is clear — I want to make something that's a first of its kind. That's my agenda when I get behind the camera."

While remaining tight-lipped about the story, he confirms that the script is currently in progress. "The genre and other details will be revealed once the story is locked," he concludes.

'The added footage will form the heart of Sanju Weds Geetha 2'

CE FEATURES

It is very rare for films to get a second chance at a theatrical release, but that has been the trend in India for a while now. Joining this list is director Nagashekar's Sanju Weds Geetha 2, starring Srinagar Kitty and Rachita Ram, which is gearing up for a re-release. The film, which quietly exited theatres weeks after its January 17 release, is set to return with a new version—featuring 20 crucial minutes that, according to the director, form "the heart of the story."

"I couldn't show the film I envisioned," says Nagashekar, explaining how the original release was clouded by a legal tangle. "A court-ordered stay prevented us from attaching the final lab version to the theatrical cut. I had no choice but to release what was available—a fragmented vision."

He adds, "People watched it and said scenes were haphazardly joined together, and that Ragini Dwivedi was barely there except for a song—and they were right. Her core scenes were missing. So were important moments with Rangayana Raghu and Sampath Raj. There was no emotional bridge. That bridge is what I'm bringing back now."

The updated version, now running 2 hours and 23 minutes—up from the original 2 hours and 2 minutes—includes restored sequences and expanded character arcs. "That 20 minutes is not filler. It's the soul. Without it, the film was lifeless." Nagashekar states that Sanju Weds Geetha 2 is his 11th film, and it carries the weight and wisdom of the 10 that came before. "Every film teaches you something, and I brought my experience from 10 films into this. I need to show exactly what I intended to say."

... says director Nagashekar, who is set to rerelease Sanju Weds Geetha 2 with an additional 20-minute footage, and believes this new version is what he intended to tell the first time around

Before deciding to rerelease, Nagashekar sought the opinions of industry veterans. "I showed it to directors like S Mahendar and KP Sreekanth—filmmakers who've seen it all. They told me, 'This is a beautiful film. It needs to be seen.' That gave me the push."

The rerelease, however, hinges on a pending decision—a "war verdict," as he puts it. "Once we get clarity about the ongoing war between India and Pakistan, I'll announce the date. People judged a version that wasn't my story. This new version is what I intended to tell."

Produced by Chalavadi Kumar, the film features music by Sridhar V and cinematography by Satya Hegde.

Upendra onboards RAPO22

CE FEATURES

POPULAR Kannada star Upendra will be seen playing a major role in the upcoming Ram Pothineni starrer, tentatively titled RAPO22. The makers announced the news of him onboarding the project on Monday.

In RAPO22, Upendra will be seen playing the role of Surya Kumar. The makers also unveiled a special character poster on the occasion, featuring Upendra exuding swag as he stands amidst a horde of people. The actor seemingly plays a celebrity figure in the film, as opposed to Ram Pothineni's common man protagonist.

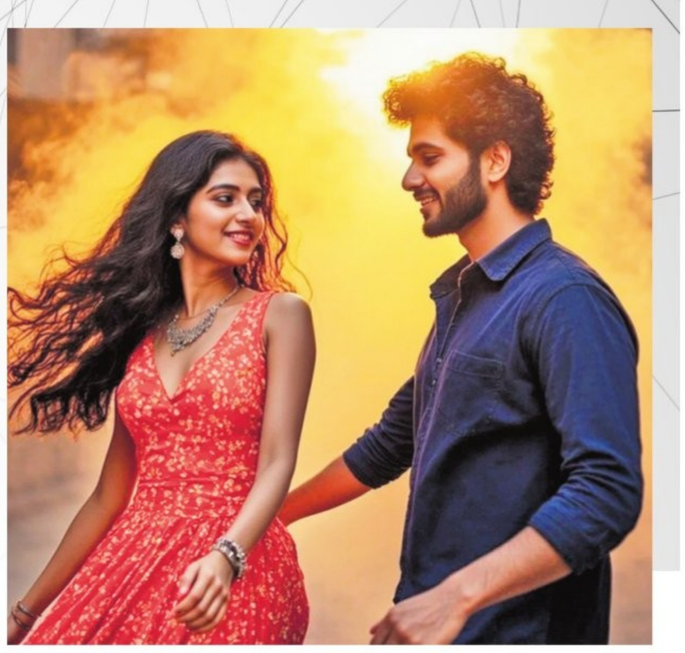
RAPO22 is directed by Mahesh Babu P, who previously directed the 2023 rom-com Miss Shetty Mr Polishetty. Mahesh Babu has also penned the story and screenplay for his film. The film additionally stars Bhagyashri Borse in the lead cast, and popular names like Rahul Ramakrishna, Rao Ramesh, Murali Sharma, Satya, and VTV Ganesh in the ensemble cast.

Naveen Yerneni and Y Ravi Shankar are producing the film under Mythri Movie Makers banner, marking their first collaboration with Ram Pothineni. The technical team includes Avinash Kolla as the production designer and Sreekar Prasad as the editor. Siddharth Nuni is the cinematographer, while Vivek-Mervin have been signed to compose music for the film.

The title glimpse of the film will be unveiled on Thursday, May 15.

Upendra has previously worked in several Telugu movies, most notably in Allu Arjun starrer S/O Satyamurthy, Toss, and Raa. Additionally, early in his career, he also directed the 1997 film Omkaram.

WE WANT AUDIENCES TO ANALYSE, NOT JUDGE: NUTAN



A still from the film

Nutan

The director discusses his upcoming film, Love You, how AI became his creative ally, and why this project redefines the future of cinema. He also hints at his next project, which will focus on the historical legend, Kempe Gowda

A SHARADHAA

Cinema, as a medium, is on the verge of a transformation with the arrival of the film, Love You, hailed as the world's first fully AI-generated feature film. Spearheaded by creator and AI engineer Nutan, this path-breaking film blends human emotion with artificial intelligence in ways never before imagined. As the film gears up for its May 16 release, Nutan opens up in this interview about technology, passion, and why this project is unlike any the industry has seen.

"I've waited 20 years for this spotlight," Nutan shares. From handling negatives to experimenting with digital formats and even directing with smartphones, he has journeyed through the evolving landscape of filmmaking technology. But Love You, he admits, is his boldest leap yet. "AI didn't replace me—it amplified me. It gave form to a vision that traditional tools couldn't reach."

Having worked as an associate director and honed his skills in editing, VFX, and CG, Nutan found himself uniquely equipped to navigate the nuances of AI. "My editing background helped me understand the rhythm of AI. But I won't lie—it took six months, 18 hours a day, to create this film," he reveals. The film itself is a romantic musical drama, traditional in plot but revolutionary in execution. "It's a classic love story. But I created 12 songs with AI, wrote the lyrics first, and then shaped the narrative. It's the same love but through a new lens." The characters, Nutan and Ashwini, are entirely AI-generated and carry the emotional weight of the story, free from celebrity associations or real-world references.

Though thrilled by the potential of AI, Nutan is far from being dismissive of human artistry. "AI won't end the job in the cinema medium. It's just another medium. When we worked with negatives, it was laborious and real. AI, in its way, brings back that intensity." He makes no apologies for the film's imperfections. "There's a disclaimer—yes, it has flaws. But we're not sorry. We want audiences to analyse, not judge."

Initially planned as a limited release, just in one theatre, Love You has gained unexpected traction after distributor Dayanand saw the film. "He said, 'This must be seen across Karnataka, across India.' That moment changed everything," Nutan says.

Looking ahead, Nutan's next AI venture is a historical epic titled Me with the King, Kempe Gowda, which will portray five shades of the same legend—from birth to legacy—and will use upgraded AI techniques. "Love You was an experiment. Kempe Gowda will be precise," he promises.

Nutan concludes with conviction: "To the world, AI is the future. To me, it's tradition—reborn in filmmaking."
